

U.S. Officials Foresee Cambodia Fall

©The New York Times

Washington — Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger believes that Cambodia will fall whether or not Congress approves emergency aid. Secretary of State Kissinger reasons that even with American aid the Phnom Penh government's chances for survival waver between zero and 50-50.

Both officials believe that Cambodia's collapse by itself would be a setback, but not a disaster for American foreign policy as long as aid has not been terminated, leaving the United States open to blame.

These are known to be the views expressed in private by these two officials. President Ford's views are not similarly known in any detail. But he is said to be deeply committed to continuing aid to Cambodia and South Vietnam.

Public Optimism

Publicly, the three men continue to be optimistic about the prospects of Phnom Penh's survival if Congress approves $222 million in emergency aid that has been requested and fearful that other nations will regard Washington as unreliable if Cambodia is denied aid and then falls.

Today, for example, Schlesinger told a House committee that the probability is "extremely high" that Cambodia could survive with the supplemental aid.

Why their sentiments reportedly expressed privately contradict their public statements appears to be open to interpretation.

Trying To Shift 'Blame'

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., suggested that the administration was trying to shift the "blame" to Congress for certain failure in Cambodia.

Others maintained that the two senior secretaries were not being cynical but were sincerely trying to cushion the adverse consequences of Cambodia's fall on American foreign policy. In their view, congressional approval of the $222 million is essential to this cushioning process. For they are said to be convinced that Cambodia's fall must clearly be seen as stemming from the deficiencies of the Phnom Penh regime rather than from Washington's defaulting on aid obligations.

And, of course, as they have said publicly, there is always the slight possibility that the aid could work to sustain the government of President Lon Nol and to bring about negotiations.

South Vietnam Different

South Vietnam is another matter entirely. Both secretaries are reliably known to feel that the fate of the Saigon regime is still vital to the United States and are trying to make subtle public distinctions between American interests in South Vietnam and Cambodia.

On Tuesday, for example, Kissinger was asked about the consequences of losing South Vietnam and Cambodia. As an official later pointed out, Kissinger answered that if South Vietnam fell, this would have "the most serious consequences." He said nothing about Cambodia.

These two officials, however, have different points of view on the advisability of Ford's recent proposal for ending aid to South Vietnam in three years. Kissinger is willing to go along with it as politically necessary; Schlesinger wants either to go on indefinitely or to pull up stakes right now.

Take-It-Or-Leave-It Basis

It is understood that the President will present the final package to Congress on a take-it-or-leave-it basis. As reliably explained, the figure will represent the administration's best judgment of what will be adequate for Saigon's survival, and the President will accept nothing less.

Discussions within the Ford administration — no one described them as serious disputes — revolve around three issues: Is there any chance that the Phnom Penh regime will survive? What would be the effects of a fall? How is the future aid program for South Vietnam to be continued, given congressional opposition?

There is no disagreement within the administration that the Phnom Penh regime will be defeated in a matter of weeks to a few months without a massive American resupply of ammunition.

The main issue for them is not whether Phnom Penh will fall, but how. Both secretaries are known to argue that if Cambodia falls despite the best American efforts, the foreign policy consequences will be bearable. If, however, it falls as a direct consequence of an American aid cutoff, Kissinger believes the effects in other capitals would be injurious over the long run while Schlesinger thinks more in terms of a serious setback.

200 Fingers Will Dance Across 880 Piano Keys

Take 200 fingers, add 10 pianos and a "monster concert" is created.

George Koutzer of New York City is conductor.

The idea of such a concert came from Louis Moreau Gottschalk and American composer and pianist of the mid-1900s. The "monster" is being adapted for a one-half hour concert in April through the Nebraska Educational Television Network.

Taping of the program began Wednesday afternoon and will continue today at the ETV studios, according to executive producer Gene Bunge. Program selections will focus on American music and composers.

Nebraska Wesleyan University instructor and pianist Cary Lewis was instrumental in coordinating the program.

Hosting the half-hour performance is Hal Shifflet of Hastings College.

Guests artists include Eugene List of the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y., featured performer in the solo selection "The Banjo" by Gottschalk; Russell Riepe of San Marcos, Tex.; Victor Savant of Chapman College in Los Angeles, Calif.; and Arthur Easley, also of Eastman School of Music.

Students from Nebraska Wesleyan and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, plus James Bastian and Phil Jones of Crete and Lincolnites Jean Saiser, Tom Fritz, Carol Fritz and Robert Murray will participate.

Among the music to be performed are the "William Tell Overture" by Rossini, Stephen Foster's "Soiree Polka," "Maple Leaf Rag" by Scott Joplin and Sousa's "Stars and Stripes for Ever."

It Was Legal Anyway

CHARCO, Tex. (AP) — Three generations living in this dry town capped a day's work with buttermilk or ice tea or went elsewhere for a beer. But they could have had a cold one in Charco all along.

Seventy-three years ago the residents voted 76-30 to ban sale of beer and whisky in Charco, but the referendum was illegal because it was held under jurisdiction of a school district instead of the required justice of the peace precinct.

Paul San Miguel, 50, was turned down for a beer retailer's license last year and spent months looking through courthouse records for proof the referendum was invalid.

When he still was denied a license, San Miguel filed suit and Goliad County Judge Linto Berge approved the application Monday.

San Miguel, a former Air Force jet mechanic, had at first planned only to sell beer to go but "they (county officials) rattled my chain once too often. Now the place will have pool tables, a record player... a regular beer joint," he said.

$2 Million Added To Exon Salary Plan

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's Appropriations Committee Wednesday added $2 million in state tax funds to Gov. J. James Exon's state employee salary recommendations in order to fund merit pay increases for some workers.

Action came on a sharply split 5-4 vote, and could lead to a gubernatorial veto.

Under the new committee plan, which will be incorporated into a bill, all full-time employees would receive a 5% pay hike plus $468 during fiscal 1975-76, as recommended by Exon and originally endorsed by the senators.

Average Of 10%

That would give the average state employee a salary increase of about 10%.

But the committee added an extra 2% to each state agency salary budget to fund merit pay boosts beyond the blanket wage increase for those employees who are judged deserving of an additional salary reward.

That action would increase the $12 million state tax cost of the governor's proposal to some $14 million.

Legislature stories
on Pages 5-8

State agency administrators would determine which employees would receive additional merit pay hikes, ranging up to 10% for an individual worker.

The pay proposal will be offered to the Legislature in a bill which also proposes wiping out "steps" in the current state pay plan, replacing them with minimum and maximum salary ranges for each pay grade.

May Bring Veto

That revision of the pay plan could prompt a gubernatorial veto even if the merit salary raise expenditure did not.

The salary bill will also order a new salary survey to be undertaken to compare state government wage levels with those in private enterprise.

Committee discussion centered on a desire to provide state administrators with some flexibility to reward good or outstanding employees with greater salary hikes than those targeted for all workers.

But the committee split on how much money should be provided for merit pay.

At first, the senators voted 7-1 for a $1 million merit pay fund. Then, on reconsideration requested by Sen. Shirley Marsh of Lincoln, they accepted the $2 million alternative on a 5-4 split.

Vote Tabulation

Voting with Ms. Marsh were Sens. Harold Simpson of Lincoln, Douglas Bereuter of Uta, Glenn Goodrich of Omaha and E. Thome Johnson of Fremont.

Opposing the proposal were Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, committee chairman, and Sens. Robert Clark of Sidney, John Savage of Omaha and Leslie Stull of Alliance.

Marvel, Clark, Savage and Stull all voted for the $1 million proposal.

Johnson voted against the $1 million plan, preferring a proposal for 4% wage hikes plus $468 for each employee, with a $3 million fund for merit adjustments. Its total cost would be the same as the approved plan.

The $468 figure is designed to provide each employee with an additional $39 a month during the coming fiscal year to help meet increases in the cost of living.

Total salary hikes for employees under the blanket increase would range from about 6% to 16%, depending on his or her base salary. The lower the wage, the greater would be the percentage increase.

In other action, the committee approved a $22.9 million budget for mental health programs within the Department of Public Institutions.

Included in that figure is $18.7 million in state tax funds.

The department requested about $19.4 million in state funding for the programs, which include the Regional Centers at Lincoln, Hastings and Norfolk and community care operations throughout the state.

The committee decided to build into the DPI budget a continuation of separate funding for the Drug Commission and the Division on Alcoholism.

Exon has recommended that the two agencies be merged into a new Office on Chemical Dependency.

Ford Foresees Delay Until June On Tax Bill

©The New York Times

Hollywood, Fla. — President Ford said Wednesday that at the rate at which Congress is moving on a tax cut for stimulating the sagging economy, it may be June before the legislation reaches his desk.

While spurring Congress to move faster, the President also said he knew of nothing further he could do to reduce unemployment other than possibly agreeing to a larger tax cut than the $16 billion he proposed on Jan. 15.

On energy, Ford said that when the Democrats in Congress come up with a conservation plan they can agree on he is ready to sit down with them and negotiate a compromise.

Ford also spoke on economic and energy matters in a 35-minute news conference. And he renewed his plan for additional military aid to Cambodia, describing the situation there now as "extremely critical" and saying the United States commitment to that country was in the tradition of American foreign policy since World War II.

—He said he continued to believe that Henry A. Kissinger was "an outstanding secretary of state, and he and I have never discussed any changes in his responsibilities. I know of no plans of any kind whatsoever on my part, on his part, to change the responsibilities, the very heavy and important responsibilities that he has," he said, responding to a question about speculation that Kissinger might resign at the end of this year and be succeeded by Elliot Richardson, the new ambassador to Great Britain.

—In his fight for additional aid to South Vietnam, Ford said that if Congress would negotiate the matter with him he would make "a firm and final decision on a three-year basis to permit South Vietnam to get over the current crisis that they face." He made this promise in the face of strong congressional opposition to his proposal to appropriate $300 million in new funds for the South Vietnam government.

—On U.S. relations with Cuba, Ford said his administration was still waiting to see "if Cuba will re-evaluate and give us some indication of a change of its policy toward the United States." In that event, he said, "we certainly would take another look, but thus far there is no sign of Mr. Castro's change of heart and so we think it is in our best interest to continue the policies that are in effect."

—Ford said arms sales to other countries were not predicated on "trying to help the U.S. economy," but for maintaining "proper military balance" in various areas of the world. If, for internal or external security, a country feels that it needs additional military equipment "and has the cash, then we feel that it is proper to make a sale from the United States to that country."

School Board Sets Hearing To Air Open Campus Debate

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Parents will have at least 1½ hours to attack or support the open campus policy for Lincoln's high schools at a public hearing Thursday night. Supt. John Prasch said the Board of Education will allow more time "if necessary."

The hearing on the policy, allowing senior high students to leave campus for lunch, will begin at 7 p.m. in the Public Schools Administration Building, 720 S. 22nd.

Anyone who wishes to speak needs only to sign up at the hearing; no advance request is necessary. Prasch said the board "will limit the time somewhat" for each speaker, but members "intend to hear everybody who wants to say something" on the controversial issue.

Recommendation

The board's regular meeting is scheduled to follow the hearing, at 8:30 p.m., and Prasch will present his open campus recommendation for board action at approximately 8:45 p.m. The superintendent met Wednesday with the four senior high principals and will base his suggestion partly on their wishes.

The matter surfaced before the board last month, when Bert Schlichting, 3401 Prescott, after leading a petition drive against open campus, spoke for a group of parents asking the policy be rescinded immediately. The board decided insufficient time was allotted on the agenda, and set the Thursday hearing to provide advance notice for all concerned.

Schlichting has claimed students are abusing the policy — which the board must renew annually for each high school — by drinking, using drugs, shoplifting, littering, causing driving and parking problems, and showing general disrespect.

Open campus proponents have responded, mainly in letters to Lincoln newspapers and in a parent meeting, that most parents, students, teachers and administrators favor continuing the policy; that abuses are minimal, and those that occur should be handled in the home.

Transfer Policy

In regular board business, Prasch will request an additional policy statement on student requests for transfers to schools outside the boundaries of their homes. After committee review of transfer denials, Prasch said his recommendations will deal with schools requested and with children in one family attending school in two or more different buildings.

Prasch will present a new set of plans for a swimming pool at the Meadow Lane Elementary School site, 7200 Vine.

The board will be asked to support or oppose freeholders' petitions by E. O. Peters and John W. Bridge, to place two parcels of property now in the Cheney School District into the Lincoln district, for the purpose of their children attending the public schools.

The Lancaster County superintendent of schools has set a March 7 hearing on the petitions. If approved, they would place the property under Lincoln district taxation.

Prasch will recommend the board deny an application by Dayton D. Wittke of the Latter Day Saints church, requesting use of East High Auditorium on March 2, because it "appears to be for a religious service," he said.

Prasch also will report on a meeting with Thomas Schrader of Lincoln South Bible Church, which has requested use of Rousseau School for religious services until the parish builds a new church. The board had requested church building status facts.

Carpenter Talk Raided By Fire

Scottsbluff (AP) — Guest speaker Terry Carpenter, at the Scottsbluff Volunteer Firemen's Annual Recognition Dinner, was left with 12 persons to listen Wednesday night when the city's fire alarm went off requiring the services of the firemen.

There were four firemen present who were to be presented with awards at the dinner. However, the group hardly had time to finish their dinner and Carpenter barely got into his speech before his audience of about 40 persons was reduced to 12.

More Than 1,500 U.S. Firms Blacklisted By Arab Nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 1,500 U.S. firms have been blacklisted by Arab nations for doing business with Israel, the State Department said Wednesday.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, made public a 1970 Saudi Arabia blacklist including such big-name industrial giants as Ford Motor Co., Sears Roebuck & Co., RCA, and Xerox Corp.

Harold H. Saunders, deputy assistant secretary of state, confirmed supplying the list to Church as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on multinational corporations. He said other Arab nations have their own boycott lists.

President Ford told a news conference in Hollywood, Fla., the blacklist "is totally contrary to the American tradition and repugnant to American principles."

He said allegations of discrimination "will be fully investigated and appropriate action taken under the laws of the United States."

Church said the Arab blacklist, originally a part of the boycott of Israel, has existed since 1946, but has taken on new significance with the increasing oil wealth of the Arab world.

Blacklisting American firms, he said, means they "can't sell to one of the booming markets of the world."

Saunders told the subcommittee it has been U.S. government policy for years to oppose both the Arab boycott of Israel and "the associated secondary boycott of foreign firms which have certain close business relations with Israel."

He said the State Department never has published the blacklist lest doing so would give it official recognition.

Saunders said U.S. opposition has been made clear repeatedly in diplomatic contacts with the Arab world, but he said rather than confrontation "it has been our view ... that this issue is best dealt with through quiet diplomacy and persuasion."

Saunders said "most progress has been made" in dealings with Saudi Arabia, in particular.

He said "firms with Jewish members have done business across the Arab world on numerous occasions."

Citing Secretary of State Henry

Kissinger as one example, he said State Department personnel of Jewish faith has been able to enter and leave Saudi Arabia without question.

Col. William Durham of the Army Corps of Engineers testified that Jewish personnel of the corps are not assigned to duty in Saudi Arabia for work on technical and construction contract management performed by U.S. Army engineers under agreements approved by the State Department.

Durham said the Army engineers in supervising construction work paid for by Saudi Arabia selects a list of eligible contractors, which Saudi Arabia has the right to reject. He said the architect and construction firms are recommended on the basis of technical competence, without regard to Jewish management or personnel, and that Saudi Arabia's right of rejection has never been exercised.

But, he said, under the Saudi Arabian agreements with the United States, contractors may not assign Jewish personnel to work in Saudi Arabia. Saudi Arabian visa applications, he said, require disclosure of religious affiliation.

Massive Reorganization Of NE Railroads Charted

— The New York Times

Washington — Proposing the largest corporate reorganization in history, the United States Railway Association unveiled Wednesday its plan to rescue the bankrupt Northeast railroads by stripping away minor unprofitable freight routes and investing more than $7 billion in a long-term freight carrier rehabilitation program.

As expected, the plan skirts nationalization. It calls for a federally aided private corporation to take over and save 15,000 miles of a collapsing 21,200-mile freight rail system of six bankrupt railroads serving 17 Northeast and Midwest states. The remaining 6,200 miles of light-density routes would be abandoned unless the states agree to share part of the losses.

The plan also calls for new passenger service routes and proposes rerouting freight lines out of the Boston-Washington corridor to clear the way for high-speed passenger trains leaving as frequently as every 15 minutes by 1990.

The plan, delivered Tuesday to President Ford and released Wednesday at a news conference by Arthur D. Lewis, chairman of the government Railway Association, aims at turning what the report called "a transportation disaster unparalleled in the nation's history" into a self-supporting rail system in as little as three years.

However, officials said it would take massive commitments of federal funds and acknowledged the entire effort could be seriously undermined by inflation.

Among the major provisions of the sweeping, 820-page plan are the following:

— The takeover by a for-profit corporation, Consolidated Rail Corporation, or Conrail, of the bankrupt lines, excluding the abandoned routes Conrail would pay with stock certificates and begin operations with spending power of up to $1.5 billion in federal obligations provided through the railway agency.

— A 14-year program to rehabilitate track and facilities costing up to $5 billion. In addition, rehabilitation and purchase of freight cars is expected to come to another $2.3 billion over 10 years.

— A proposal that two solvent lines, Norfolk & Western and the Chessie System, take over portions of bankrupt lines to create competing alternatives to Conrail.

— Restoration of rail "corridor" passenger service between Cincinnati and Detroit, Cleveland and Pittsburgh, Chicago and Cleveland, and Washington and Pittsburgh. Increased passenger service in 12 other city corridors, including the highest priority passenger routes between Boston and Washington.

The plan now faces five months of public study and hearings — and undoubtedly controversy stirred by the objections of communities whose lines are scheduled for abandonment. The report will then be submitted for congressional approval on July 26. If Congress does not turn down the plan within 60 days, it becomes law.

At stake is a virtually bankrupt, deteriorated system that serves one-seventh of the nation's area, but that in one year accounted for 4.95 billion tons of freight movements, or 44% of the national total. The region itself accounts for 38% of the employment, 55% of the personal income and 48% of the population of the country.

Yet the six carriers — the Penn Central, Ann Arbor, Reading, Lehigh Valley, Central of New Jersey and Lehigh and Hudson River — with their 42,000 cars a day moving between 8,000 stations — lost $221 million in 1973 and continue to pile up record deficits.

Dud Discovered, Defused, Discarded

A mud-covered dud bomb was lifted out of its underground lair this week in Kurume, Japan, after it was discovered in the suburb of Tokyo. The bomb, dropped on the city by U.S. B29 bombers during the latter stages of World War II, was defused and disposed of by a defense force bomb disposal squad. An area around where the bomb was discovered was evacuated, which included about 2,000 residents.

Bomb Threat Callers To Face Questioning

DENVER (AP) — The federal government now has a set of questions to ask bomb threat callers.

The form, given department heads at the regional federal offices here, instructs the telephone operator to seek the exact words of the caller in answer to these five questions:

"When is the bomb to explode?"

"Where is the bomb right now?"

"What kind of bomb is it?"

"What does it look like?"

"Why did you place the bomb?"

The operator is also asked to describe the caller's voice by sex, age and tone and to say whether or not it is familiar. Any background noise should be noted.

There is also a space for "additional comments."

$1.4 Trillion Budget Foreseen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ford administration budget officials told Congress Wednesday that federal spending would reach $1.4 trillion by the year 2000 if the upward trend in domestic assistance benefits continues.

James T. Lynn, the President's Budget Director, said this would mean that total government spending, including state and local as well as federal, would be over half of the nation's total output.

Prices Being Reduced! . . . Inflation Easing?

By United Press International
A major retailer Wednesday announced a sharp reduction in prices for men's clothing, and industry spokesmen predicted further rollbacks on all apparel.

In another sign of easing inflation, major refiners reduced wholesale sugar prices. It was the sixth cut in sugar prices in three months. Utah-Idaho Sugar Co. reduced its price for grocery sugar to 38.7 cents a pound.

An official for Amstar, the nation's largest sugar company, said raw sugar prices have been declining steadily for several weeks because of a significant drop in world demand. "The speed of the decline has stepped up in the last couple of days," he said.

J. C. Penney Co., the nation's second largest general merchandise chain behind Sears, rolled back retail prices on an extensive list of men's clothing by as much as 25%.

"There has been some softening in raw materials prices at the wholesale level that we are passing on to our customers," a Penney spokesman said.

"This is not a temporary thing." Last month, Penney reduced prices, on most of its home sewing fabrics.

An official of the National Association of Retail Merchants, representing 30,000 retailers, confirmed that there is a clear trend toward lower clothing prices.

"Things are easing," she said. "We have heard from the field that prices are coming down. It's in the air."

A spokesman for the American Textile Manufacturers Institute said wholesale textile prices have been dropping steadily since last August but are just beginning to be reflected in retail clothing prices.

The drop in price was in part a result of the economic slump and slack consumer demand.

The recent price reductions on autos are not true price cuts, since the lower prices are accomplished by removing some standard items, such as steel radial tires, and replacing them with cheaper equipment.

Egypt Continues Tough Bargaining

Cairo — Egyptian government officials who are proclaiming their confidence that Secretary of State Henry Kissinger will succeed in getting Israel to withdraw from the Sinai passes and oil fields are at the same time continuing tough bargaining with the American ambassador. The official Egyptian optimism is based largely on the belief that the United States had decided to buy Israeli concessions with new economic and military assistance.

Filibuster Compromise Proposed

Washington — A new compromise on the filibuster rule in the Senate was proposed by Mike Mansfield, the Democratic leader, and Russell B. Long, D-La. They suggested that the vote of 60% of the total membership should be sufficient to invoke closure ending a debate. That would mean, assuming there were no vacancies, it would take 60 votes instead of the present rule which requires two-thirds of those present and voting.

Met Struggles For Survival

New York — The Metropolitan Opera, faced with what it called a "survival" situation, asked its employees to reduce their working year to 11 months with a 10% pay cut for the shorter period. Anthony A. Bliss, the executive director, told a hastily-called meeting that if the opera closed it might never reopen. Gene Boucher, a vice president of the American Guild of Musical Artists, said: "If it means survival, it's not so bad."

New York Harbor Crime Ebbs

New York — The Waterfront Commission of New York harbor said the docks and piers of New York and New Jersey are approaching industrial tranquility and a stable work force in contrast to a history of crime, violence and racketeering. Thefts and other crimes are said to have declined sharply, although they have not disappeared from the bustling port. Credit was given to the use of theft-resistant containers and better pay and security for workers.

Illinois Indians Of 6500 B.C. Described As 'Sophisticated'

The New York Times

Evanston, Ill. — Contrary to popular conception, the Indians who lived in the central Mississippi River valley in 6500 B.C. were not primitive savages who struggled just to survive.

They were a comparatively sophisticated people who ate well on the abundant wildlife around them, lived as families in substantial wooden huts, the earliest houses known in America, and did not fight with their neighbors.

This composite picture of early American man in the decades after the last Ice Age is emerging this winter from evidence uncovered by Northwestern University archeologists and scientists in the past six months at the Koster excavations near Kampsville in west central Illinois.

Until cold weather halted its work in November, a team of archeologists, led by Dr. Stuart Struwer, was digging in the 11th horizon, or stratum, of the sprawling Koster site, a level that has been positively dated at about 6500 B.C.

Struwer believes even lower levels may date back into time between 8000 and 10,000 B.C. If so, this would place American man on an inhabited site at about the same time the last glacial period ended and the great ice fields, 200 miles to the north, began retreating.

Struwer said that "these aborigines were really rather sophisticated people who utilized their environment well and had developed an effective strategy for survival."

The Machine Delivers

What can you say about Chicaguh, as Mike Royko would say the mayor would pronounce it?

After a fifth term in which a tidal wave of indictments, unprecedented in the history of municipal government, were returned against political chums of the Boss, various officials and cronies were convicted of such things as bribery and zoning fixes, city insurance contracts were dumped in the lap of the mayor's son, earning him a six-figure commission, in which the Boss' health became a significant question mark as did his ability to deliver on promised new development, in which crime went up, jobs left the city and public education entered a crisis period, the Democratic machine Tuesday night delivered 60% of the vote or thereabouts for Richard J. Daley, renominating him for a sixth term as mayor of Chicago.

So overwhelming was Daley's victory that apparently the Republican nominee for mayor, who lost his city council seat to a Daley man, is thinking about dropping out of the general election race and giving it to Daley without a fight because it is hopeless to fight the machine.

So overwhelming was Daley's victory that the people of Chicago should cringe in shame.

As the ballots were being counted, a Democratic precinct captain was arrested for browbeating voters with a pamphlet suggesting that anyone who didn't vote for the mayor would have a hard time getting a job with the city. That was a rather mild campaign technique for an organization which has broken up taverns for displaying an opponent's political literature. Many of those voters the mayor's men didn't bully, they bribed.

But that doesn't account for the hundreds of thousands of Chicago people who apparently think the mayor is a good deal and voted for him of their own volition.

The mayor, we observe from watching him in person several times, from what we read and see of him on television, conveys the impression that he is grievously wounded at the suggestion that he or his people have done anything wrong. His supporters likewise play the blind act and it is hard to figure out why. It isn't hard to figure out why city workers and political cronies fight for him, but it is hard to figure out why Chicagoans who don't have to depend on him to live continue to suffer the embarrassment of having him speak for them and push them around.

All we really know about Chicago is what we learn through the media and learn from a few first-hand observers. But what we hear about is a city on the skids, an administration deserted by respectable former bastions of support, unprecedented corruption, shameful nepotism and favoritism and in some areas, stupefying administrative incompetence. The last big city machine continues to make a national spectacle of the city it controls.

Daley responds to criticism with Archie Bunker apple pie stuff and completely ignores — or tries to cover up — the problems: Nothin's wrong, the kids are great, my loyal fellow public servants are great, the city's great, we love young people, old people, all the people of this great city, so shaddup.

Accusing Chicago of being unique in putting up with this stuff invites argument.

But this much we know: Richard Nixon tried it in Washington and got caught.

Richard Daley has got away with it for 20 going on 24 years and they love him now more than ever.

How Much Further?

The supplemental aid requests for South Vietnam and Cambodia pose a grave question far surpassing in importance the measly $522 million involved. That is, are we going to continue to link our destiny and commit our resources to one side or another — and really, the distinctions blur; these are not really anti-communist versus communist campaigns — in far off civil wars?

President Ford in a stepped-up campaign to win support for the additional money for ammunition says it is "a moral question that must be faced squarely. Are we to deliberately abandon (speaking specifically of Cambodia, but it applies to Vietnam as well) a small country in the midst of its life and death struggle? Is the United States, which so far has consistently stood by its friends through the most difficult of times, now to condemn, in effect, a small Asian nation totally dependent upon us?"

That is a simple, powerful moral argument but it is answered by a more powerful argument the resolution of which ripped this nation apart for almost a decade.

It is a small point, perhaps, but President Ford has yet failed to say what he will ask for if the $300 million extra for South Vietnam and the $222 million extra for Cambodia fail to do the job. If we are committed to save them, as Ford and Kissinger say, how much further do we go?

The Popular Ms. Thatcher

By KINGSBURY SMITH

LONDON — If and when Mrs. Margaret Thatcher, Britain's current political sensation, becomes the country's first woman prime minister, she will endeavor to maintain and strengthen a special relationship between the United Kingdom and the United States.

This was made clear by the new and exciting leader of the Conservative Party in an exclusive on and off-the-record talk with William Randolph Hearst Jr., editor-in-chief of the Hearst Newspapers, and the writer.

Sitting alone with us in the House of Commons office of the leader of the opposition, the attractive, blonde, 49-year-old mother of 21-year-old twins, who is now being literally mobbed in her public appearances, said she saw no reason why Britain's participation in the EEC (European Economic Community), which she supports, should prevent maintenance of the long-time special relationship between the two leading English-speaking nations. Emphasizing her intention to promote that special relationship if she becomes prime minister, Mrs. Thatcher said:

"We have kept freedom alive in the world."

Since she has had practically no experience in foreign affairs, she was reluctant to express her views on world problems. "I've only been in this office for a few days, so please don't ask me technical questions about the international situation," she said. When later the discussion touched on the subject of dictators, she asked that our tape recording machine be turned off.

However, she has strong views about the need for adequate defense and support of NATO.

Commenting recently on the Labor government's plan to curtail still further defense expenditures and its quibbling about Britain's participation in the EEC, she said:

"There must be something wrong with a great nation which acquiesces in the running down of its defenses at the expense of its allies and allows itself to be blinkered in its approach to the European adventure by niggling arguments about the price of tinned fruit."

In telling us about her entry into politics at the age of 24, Mrs. Thatcher, whose youth was marked by a brilliant school record that won her a scholarship, a diploma in chemistry, and later a law degree, said:

"I became very fascinated with law. Law is a form of order without which society cannot endure. The government is one form of ordered society. Law is another. Self-discipline is a third — the individual aspect of a civilized society."

She is a strong advocate of law and order and has accused the Labor Party of undermining it by "scandalous and unprincipled" support of law-breaking by unions and Socialist-dominated municipal councils.

She thinks the balance "has been tilted too far towards concern for the law-breakers, and insufficient attention has been paid to the interests of the law-abiding."

We mentioned that we had just come from Dublin, where the new president of Ireland, Cearbhall O'Daigh, had told us about his conviction that survival of the human race in the nuclear age can only be safeguarded by what he described as world peace through law — meaning acceptance by all governments of the settlement of international disputes by an international court of justice.

"You cannot accept such jurisdiction until you are certain it will be impartially administered on some wholly acceptable legal principles," Mrs. Thatcher said. "I am not familiar with international law, but one of our problems is that a lot of people have been very idealistic and have thought that if only we all got together around the table, the idealism and the right solutions would come through."

"We know full well that an international organization isn't like that. It's usually a lot of people interested in maintaining their own positions and gaining their own advantages. You must have a system that commands respect because it is founded on the right principles and those principles are impartially administered.

"Law must be impartial, and it must be seen to be so. That doesn't suddenly happen on an international scale, you know. It will come about only through long determination by the people of the world."

Since Mrs. Thatcher became just recently the first woman leader of a political party in Britain's history, her popularity has been soaring. The latest Gallup Poll had 64% of the general public thinking she would make a good leader of the Conservative Party, and 57% believing she has strengthened the chances of the Conservatives winning the next election.

The poll also indicated the Conservatives would win a general election if it were held in the near future. However, there appears little likelihood that it will happen because the Labor government, even with its present slim overall majority of three, could hold on under its mandate for another 4½ years.

Nevertheless, it is obvious that Mrs. Thatcher is already developing the main thrust of her eventual election campaign, she is becoming the champion of Britain's middle class, just as Richard Nixon was the champion of America's "silent majority" when he campaigned for the presidency in 1968.

Like William Gladstone, Britain's great 19th Century liberal, she believes that personal freedom and individual responsibility stand high among the primary virtues of a democratic society; that money should be left, as far as possible, to fructify in the pockets, savings accounts and investments of the people capable and energetic enough to earn more than they need for the necessities of life.

"We need those who are going to save money; who are going to do things by themselves."

Her program calls for reduced taxation earnings in order to provide incentives for work and enterprise "rather than idleness." Determined to reverse the march towards Socialism in Britain, she told a Glasgow audience this past week that the ultimate objective of the Labor government is "nothing less than the destruction of private enterprise in this country and the enforcement of state control and direction in every aspect of our lives."

Opposition To Nuclear Plants

Nuclear Power Opposed

The citizens of Nebraska now have the responsibility, the power and the right to stop the threatening nightmare the nuclear juggernauts of this decade propose to force down our throats.

The promoters of nuclear-powered electricity have been totally irresponsible to the public and have been developing power plants under illusions of safety and economy. They would like to sweep the facts under the rug. The long-persisting poison (radio-activity) produced by these plants is probably the worst poison known to mankind. The quantity of radio-activity produced by one nuclear-powered plant in one year is equal to that of 1,000 Hiroshima-type atomic bombs. Once this radio-activity is released into our environment, it is irreversible and will last for centuries. Imagine having to evacuate Detroit or an area the size of Nebraska and Colorado.

The destructive power of these plants is beyond full comprehension and the security is over-estimated.

And we do have better and safer choices. Some of these alternatives include solar energy and wind energy. If the billions of dollars proposed for and being spent on nuclear power were spent on wind and solar energy, we would be safer, healthier and save money in the long-run.

I say, let's not let the nuclear power interests have P.R. men trying to deceive us. Nuclear-powered plants are unclean, unsafe and expensive.

We've been lucky thus far. When will our luck run out? Who will pay for the mistake? Most likely our children and loved ones.

The Federal Reserve

Say it isn't so. Oscar Peterson in the Feb. 20 Star wrote "The Free Lunch" letter. He said the 12 Federal Reserve banks and their 25 branches are privately owned. Surely not so. I am now looking at a dollar bill. At the top, it says: "Federal Reserve Note" under which is printed: "The United States of America," under which is a big picture of George Washington. Without rhetoric, without dissertation, are the Federal Reserve banks and their 25 branches privately owned?

GENE KELLEY

Editor's Note: No, the Federal Reserve banks are not privately owned. They are owned by the commercial banking system. They are referred to as a "banker's bank."

Regulators Unresponsive

The Star editorial last Friday headed: "Regulators Under Fire," is an outstanding expose of one of the many facets concerning the uncomplimentary conduct of the Nebraska Public Service Commission, whose dual roles in many capacities and undertakings resembles a Jekyll and Hyde series.

This subdivision of our government is totally unresponsive to the unorganized public who needs the protection originally intended from the agency. Instead, the commission exercises

Oakdale, Nebr.

By LA VERNA HASSLER

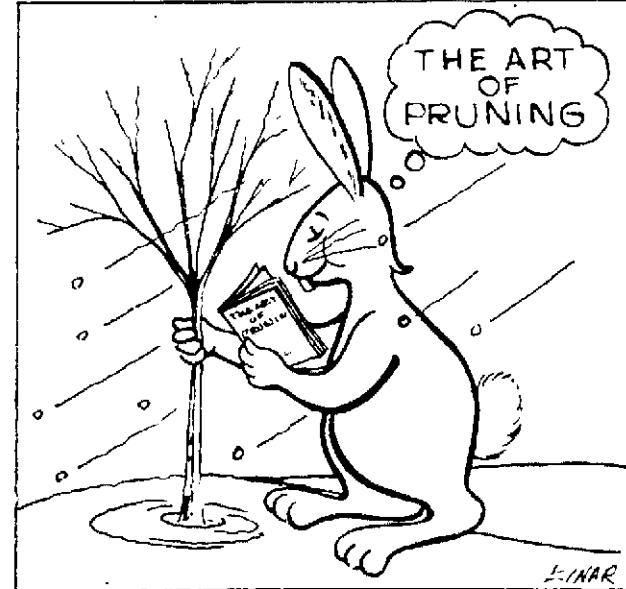

What glory! Sunshine; bright, penetrating sunshine. It is streaming through my south kitchen windows falling in zig-zag patterns across the floor making patches of brilliance here and there and filling my day with a newfound lease on life.

It seems I am not the only one who is happy about our clearing weather pattern. Everyone I spoke with was tired of the gloomy, foggy weather that February had so lavishly doused upon us.

The farm woodlot seemed silent and deserted the other day when we went to gather logs for the fireplace. It did not remain silent for long, however. A crow flew over cawing loudly, his raspy call echoing far and wide.

Perhaps it was the stillness of the day under a blanket of new-fallen snow that made his call seem so loud and clear. The fall of snow from tree branches seemed hushed until the blue-jays heard the crow. They perched on the leafless trees overhead like pompous kings with their stately crests. They began a rally of shrill racket that drove the crow from the area. In fact they very nearly drove me away until they were satisfied that their real enemy had disappeared.

The windbreak has held the snow in a long high bank across the garden area. At least there should be enough moisture this spring to bring up a radish or two. With luck I may raise three.

I saw a rabbit hiding high in a bank of snow that had drifted across the row of lilac bushes. I know it was cutting some of the tender young shoots off with its razor-sharp teeth. If one could teach a rabbit a few gardening tips about which branches were the proper ones to prune out each year, spring would arrive with much less work. Unfortunately a rabbit cuts every branch it sees that looks tasty, sometimes making a bush look very unsightly. It takes a full year of pruning and sometimes two before a plant or bush can be brought back to a balanced shape.

Now is the time to take cut-abusive authority and privileges, much to our consternation and financial loss.

It has a big brother in Washington, D.C. — the Interstate Commerce Commission whose members are composed of political lackeys and ward heelers and whose misconduct has destroyed rail transportation. Its most notable mistake was its failure to approve, as a benefit to the entire nation, the merger of the Rock Island and Union Pacific Railroad.

Statement Draws Fire

I have just read the timely and well-written article on "Older Downtown Towers", in Column A, Lincoln Star, Monday, Feb. 17, 1975.

I think it is of great public service to make the citizens of Lincoln aware of the potential fire and safety dangers in these old high-rise buildings.

However, I must take exception to the statement by the ex-fire inspector, when he says he was taken off of an inspection because he found code violations or fire and safety hazards.

The downtown high-rise buildings are inspected on a regular, three times a year basis by captains, lieutenants and acting officers, at the fire company level.

In all the years that I spent as a fire inspector, under Chief Roscoe Benton and as chief fire inspector, under Dallas Johnson, I was never told to, nor did I tell an inspector to "lay off" or remove an inspector from any building inspection. Fortunately for the citizens of Lincoln, my superior officers did not succumb to political or private pressures, in carrying out their duties as public servants.

For reasons known only to himself, this ex-fire inspector has chosen to fabricate an untrue picture of his role, on fire inspections, while working for the Lincoln Fire Prevention Bureau, and also to mislead two fine Lincoln Star staff writers.

Arm-Chair Planners

Hopefully, farmers and all rural people will become increasingly vigilant and aware of threatened urban-proposed, urban-written land use planning laws in the works.

Society would be hard pressed to come up with a more concerned, conscientious group of land stewards than the family farmers! The farmer not only loves the land he lives on and raises his family on, he knows the land is his livelihood. He knows if he does out the windrow of trees he'll be parched by hot, dry summer winds and he and his livestock frozen by winter blizzards. He knows he must conserve both soil and moisture.

This knowledge doesn't necessarily come to him in textbooks or from "land grant" universities, secured in the silver-lined pockets of chemical companies — his knowledge comes from years of living and working on the land.

Most of the push for land use legislation seems to be coming from arm chair environmentalists and other urban-oriented sources.

Consider the typical "urban land user" today. In effect, he covers up his rich top soil or allows the contractor to dig it out, haul it away and sell it. He puts down dead, hardpan clay, builds his house, buys new top soil and seeds or lays sod, buys expensive fertilizers (straining the market and increasing costs to farmers), puts it on his grass in great quantities, uses great amounts of precious ground water to make the grass grow (even during its natural dormant season), often lets precious water run off into the storm sewer, gets the grass real-l-l-l-y growing . . . inches tall . . . then trots out the lawnmower, fills it with precious gas (helping boost fuel prices), runs around and mows off all that grass he tried to very hard to grow, then sacks it in plastic (another petrol product) and finally pays some garbageman EXTRA to HAUL IT AWAY! So he can start again!

These are the people who will plan the "proper" use of our farm land? No way!

Granted, some few urban dwellers do have more sense — they plant gardens.

Legislators, be forewarned — don't fool around!

MOTHER NATURE

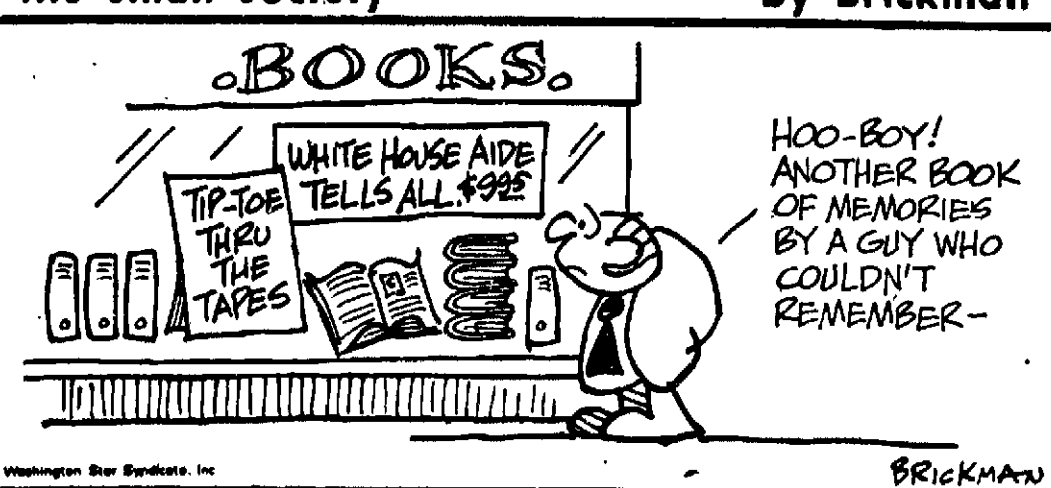

Patchwork Prairie Country

several years ago. They were not blooming in the spring, at least every spring, so I planted them in another choice spot along the front walk. They are up to their same old tricks . . . blooming one spring, then skipping a year or two with nothing but greenery. Maybe this is the nature of the flowers but I have an idea it is my care . . . I have not made them happy or perhaps I have not talked to them enough.

If they do not bloom this year, they certainly will get a piece of my mind. I may not be able to spare it but they will get it, anyway. I have no feeling of good will toward a plant that I pamper along as I would a rare orchid and have it remain a mass of green instead of flowering as it should. Perhaps I will have to go to planting sunflowers and musk thistles. How could one fail with those? I must admit I do think the flower of the musk thistle is pretty and the sunflower is so clean-cut and brilliant. Beauty is in the eye of the beholder but I fear a garden of these wild flowers would not get a second glance from an ardent flower grower.

I need an educational course in "Making Flowers Grow and Bloom in Two Easy Lessons." The first lesson should deal with the selection of the sure bloomers. The second lesson — discarding those from the first lesson that are not sure bloomers. Maybe I could get all I need to know in one lesson: "Knowing a goof-off when you see one."

Panel Advances Sex Crimes Bill

By The Associated Press
The Legislature's Judiciary Committee advanced a final draft of a bill revamping Nebraska law on sex crimes to the floor of the Unicameral Wednesday.

The measure, LB25, makes major changes in statutes relating to sexual assault.

It has key provisions aimed at eliminating portions of current law which critics have contended puts a rape victim, rather than the alleged rapist, on trial.

The bill also repeals Nebraska statutes on sodomy, making sexual acts between consenting adults legal.

It also establishes the right to privacy in state law. No such right is currently spelled out in statute and thus the Nebraska Supreme Court does not acknowledge its existence.

In revising law regarding rape the bill would:

- For the first time allow a closed session in which a judge could be told of an alleged rapist's past sexual history. The judge would then decide if any or part of that history, such as previous sex crimes, should be made known to the jury.

Such evidence is not currently admissible.

— End a defense attorney's ability to impugn the integrity of an alleged rape victim through her past sexual conduct. Only past sexual conduct relating to her relationship with the alleged rapist would be admissible.

The bill, unlike an initial version, requires some corroborating evidence to obtain a conviction.

The courts would have authority to order and impose treatment for someone convicted of sexual assault, if convinced it could lead to preventing recurrence of future sexual assaults by the person convicted.

The bill actually takes the word "rape" out of the law, and establishes three degrees of sexual assault.

The bill sponsored by Lincoln Sen. Wally Barnett maintains the death penalty for rape resulting in death.

Committee Okays Bill To Halve Suspensions

By United Press International
A bill which calls for cutting in half the 12-month suspension for drivers convicted under Nebraska's point system law received 6-0 approval Wednesday from the Legislature's Public Works Committee.

LB263 was sponsored by Sen. Donald Dworak of Columbus, who described it as part of a comprehensive package of measures drawn by the Department of Motor Vehicles.

Current law provides for suspension of a license for anyone assessed 12 points during a two-year period.

Left undisturbed by the Dworak proposal would be the statute under which a driver who loses his license on points twice within five years is denied the right to drive for three years.

Motor Vehicles Director John L. Sullivan supported the bill.

"We could effectively work with a six-month penalty," he told the committee.

Heard and held for later amending was LB259, which would permit persons to drive to and from work if they lost their licenses under the implied consent or point laws, if the suspensions meant jeopardization of their livelihoods.

Those convicted of motor vehicle homicide or use of a car in a felony would not be covered by the bill, Sen. Gary Anderson of Axtell said.

Bob Keller, chief probation officer in Lancaster County, said he could not support the bill as introduced.

He said courts are in a good position to determine if a person should be allowed to drive because a probation officer would make a thorough background check of the individual for the court's guidance.

"A work-driver's permit would not change a drinker's attitude and habits," he said.

Legislative Pay Almost Overlooked

Gov. J. James Exon sent a bill to the Legislature Wednesday after it was discovered that no one had introduced a bill of some importance to many of the state senators — their salary appropriation.

The governor can have a bill introduced into the Unicameral if he can get one senator to sign it. Speaker Jules Burbach did.

The bill, LB376, appropriates $248,969 for salaries of state senators during the coming fiscal year. The appropriation is designed to cover the constitutional $4,800 annual salary for each state senator.

In other action, the committee:

- Advanced LB252, which would permit more than three persons to ride in the front seat of a car or pickup truck if the driver's vision was not obstructed.
- Agreed to sponsor a bill changing some of the rules covering meetings or irrigation district boards of directors.
- Advanced LB197 which, as amended, would increase the compensation of State Highway Commission members from $20 to $30 a day.
- Advanced a bill, LB328, requiring the wearing of helmets by motorcycle riders.
- Pulled back into committee LB249 for reconsideration. As reported out of committee recently the measure provided for railroad companies to finance the maintenance of railroad crossing safety devices. The committee was told some federal money apparently will be available to help pay for the maintenance.
- Agreed to introduce a widely awaited bill dealing with regulation of irrigation wells.

Soil Survey Financing Put On Hold

By United Press International
The Legislature voted Wednesday to delay a decision on whether to trim a proposed $5 million soil survey program from proposed appropriations in the interests of economy.

Before the lawmakers was the appropriation measure for LB180, sponsored by Sens. Cal Carsten of Avoca and J. W. Burbach of Crofton.

The appropriations measure calls for $350,000 for next year to put the state in the soil survey business. But the 10-year obligation which would be assumed by passage of the bill totals an estimated $5 million to complete the statewide soil survey.

Sen. William Skarda of Omaha offered a kill motion on the appropriation request saying a year's delay at least would cause no harm and would help make the budgeting process this year easier.

But Burbach asked that the bill be held in place with the kill motion pending so that amendments on costs could be offered before a final decision on the fate of the appropriation is reached.

The lawmakers voted 25-20 to grant Burbach's request.

Burbach contended it was "extremely important that we pass" the bill even with reductions in cost.

The soil survey, he said, once completed will be used as the basis for such things as land use planning and even for property tax figuring purposes.

Opponents, however, echoed comments like the one made by Sen. John Cavanaugh of Omaha who said "we simply can't afford it this year" in view of the state of the economy.

Others, noting the federal government already has the survey 50% completed, questioned the need of the state to get involved at all.

Handicapped Housing Bill Sent To Exon

By United Press International
The Legislature Wednesday passed and sent to the governor a bill designed to grant equal housing rights to the blind, visually handicapped and physically handicapped.

The bill, LB83, was sponsored by Sen. Glenn Goodrich of Omaha and received a 42-0 final approval vote.

"It is the intent of the Legislature that blind persons, visually handicapped and other physically disabled persons shall be entitled to full and equal access to all housing accommodations offered for rent, lease or compensation in this state," the bill's preamble section states.

However, the bill said, it is not the purpose of the legislation to force landowners to modify property to meet the special needs of the visually and physically handicapped.

But on the matter of seeing eye dogs, the bill said the fact a person has one will not act as a hindrance to getting a place to live.

The dog's owner will be liable for damages and may have to pay a higher damage deposit. But the landowner won't be able to charge additional rent for a dog under the bill.

The Legislature defeated an attempt Wednesday to place color photographs on drivers' licenses in Douglas, Lancaster and Sarpy counties.

Omaha Sen. Glenn Goodrich attempted to revive his LB185 which was killed by the Public Works Committee.

His motion was defeated 25-10.

School Tax Bill Said 'Exciting,' 'Far-Fetched'

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Comments ranged from "an exciting idea" to "too far-fetched" Wednesday on an ambitious bill which would eliminate property tax support for schools while plugging up some loopholes in the income tax system.

Those present at the Legislative Revenue Committee's hearing on Sen. Bill Burrows LB362 generally agreed the measure is imaginative despite whether they favored or opposed it.

Sen. Donald Dworak of Columbus said it is "an exciting concept, while Sen. Ron Cope of Kearney called Burrows' proposal "too far-fetched."

The most controversial part of the bill appeared to be the section which stipulates that an income tax for schools, probably 4%, would be paid on adjusted gross income instead of net income by individuals and corporations. Federal and state income tax is now paid on net income.

By paying the tax on adjusted gross income, Burrows said he hopes to eliminate "loophole" deductions in the present tax system, such as deductions for capital gains, charitable contributions, investment credits and bond premiums.

An income tax on adjusted gross income would allow deductions for activities incurred in earning a living, Burrows said. For example, a farmer could still deduct the cost of fertilizer and a businessman could deduct travel expenses.

Burrows said the "loophole" deductions would be eliminated in the income tax for schools because it "erodes the tax base so much that it makes the rate usurious."

50% Gets Away

Bert Evans, an associate professor of economics at the University of Nebraska, cited estimates that perhaps as much as 50% of the income earned in Nebraska is not subject to federal income tax because of the "loopholes."

Evans and others helped Burrows with the drafting of LB362.

Evans said he does not see why a person who buys a cow for $400 and sells it for $600 should be allowed to deduct part of the $200 capital gain from his income taxes when a person who earns $200 in salary must pay income tax in the full amount.

Some committee members, including Cope who said he preferred to call the deductions "tax incentives" rather than "loopholes," questioned whether a tax on adjusted gross income would discourage farmers and businessmen from "doing anything."

Investment 'Discouraged'

Evans responded that the present property tax situation discourages investment, because, he said, "The guy who puts his money in a savings account is better off now than the guy who builds plants and hires people."

Mike Tavlin, an attorney who worked with Evans on LB362, said the income tax approach would reduce Lancaster County's mill levy by 56%.

Kent Kalb, representing State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters, said the income tax system whereby the state sets the rate for each district according to its school budget and collects the tax for the districts is operationally feasible.

"It would be no worse than in 1967 (when the sales and income taxes were adopted)," Kalb said.

The lone opposition to LB362 was voiced by Forrest Johnson, representing the Nebraska Tax Research Council, a business group.

Johnson said the funding for local schools should not be shifted to the income tax alone, but should maintain the 50-50 balance between sales and income tax revenue.

The committee took no action on LB362, now on Sen. Jerome Warner's LB506 which was also aired Wednesday.

Bill Would Require State To Buy More Compacts

By The Associated Press

The Legislature gave a first round green light Wednesday to a bill that would require that one-half of the cars purchased and leased by the state in the next fiscal year be compact models.

Springfield Sen. Orval Keyes talked the bill into a committee report, approving an amendment to an Appropriations Committee bill, LB474, on a 28-5 vote. The amendment contained the compact car requirement.

is right" about the need to conserve fuel, Keyes said, "here's your chance to show it."

Keyes said the state would have saved "a couple of hundred thousand dollars last year" in gasoline and purchase and lease costs with compact cars.

Keyes said the state bought "about 340 cars" last year, and "not more than two or three" were compacts.

Legislature Advances Bill To Up Veterans' Aid Fund

Nebraska lawmakers Wednesday gave first-round approval to a bill which would boost the $8 million Nebraska Veterans' Aid Fund to $9 million this year.

The measure, LB234, goes along with a recommendation made to the Legislature by Gov. J. James Exon in his budget message.

Sponsor of the proposal was Sen. Gerald Keck of Ralston, who noted the number of Nebraska veterans swelled by 77,000 since the Korean and Vietnam wars.

"The basic mission of the fund is to meet emergency needs of veterans," he said. Only income from fund investments is used for the veterans.

LB234 was advanced on a 30-2 ballot, and its companion funding measure, LB234A, was moved ahead on a 33-0 vote.

Legislators rejected a proposed amendment by Lincoln Sen. Wally Barnett, which would have required that all cars purchased or leased by the state be compacts. Barnett opposed Keyes' amendment, saying it would be unfair.

The Legislature advanced the bill, with Keyes' amendment, on a 29-3 vote.

"It will have to be changed 100 times before it's ever passed," Barnett said after the vote.

Keyes said Nebraska could "set a precedent for the nation" in saving fuel by going to compact cars.

A State government employee union representative told the Legislature's Labor Committee Wednesday the administration's "hold the line" financing has done nothing for employee pay.

"We're desperate," said Roger Schulz, executive secretary of the Nebraska Association of Public Employees, in support of a bill, LB496, to grant cost of living increases on a quarterly basis for state employees.

"We've been holding the line for four years and the result is a 46% turnover rate," Schulz said.

Under the terms of the measure there could also be decreases in pay scales if the cost of living index dropped more than 5%.

The committee did not act on the bill.

Some committee members questioned the effect of such a provision on the budgeting process. Specifically, they wanted to know what would happen if there wasn't enough money appropriated.

The bill's final section, however, provides that if salary appropriations were insufficient then raises simply wouldn't be granted.

Chambers Says Compensation Bill 'Should Fly'

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha Wednesday asked the Legislature's Labor Committee to act favorably on a bill of his to extend Workmans Compensation coverage to domestic employees.

However, Chambers also asked that if the committee wanted to do any amending on his LB428, he would appreciate it if they did not touch the exclusion on farm and ranch workers.

"Without the farm workers it ought to fly," the Omaha lawmaker said, referring to the chances of the bill being enacted if advanced to the floor.

In a previous session, Chambers had a bill which would have expanded Workmans Compensation laws to include farm and ranch hands. But the bill never had a chance and was speedily killed. Chambers said he didn't want a repeat of that experience.

The bill drew support from the AFL-CIO, the American Insurance Association and Nebraska Fire and Casualty Insurance companies. The committee did not act on the bill.

Under its terms, those who employ household workers would have an endorsement on their fire insurance policies.

Chambers and insurance representatives said the endorsement would cost about $3.

2 Corrections Officials Support Bill To Revamp 'Good Time Law'

By The Associated Press
The Director of Correctional Services and the Warden at the Nebraska Penal Complex have expressed strong support, in writing, for a pending bill that would revamp Nebraska's so-called good time law. The law determines how much time can be subtracted from an inmates' sentence for good behavior. The Judiciary Committee has introduced LB567, which would clarify the good time law and reduce the amount of time a released convict would have to spend on parole.

The two corrections officials, and two representatives of the inmate population, have written letters to the Judiciary Committee supporting the bill.

Warden Robert Parratt wrote the strongest endorsement of the measure.

"In light of the inmates' opinion that in reality the current law provides no relief and consequently no incentive, they feel no great loss at having their good time forfeited," Parratt said. "This makes disciplinary administration and institution control extremely difficult."

Parratt added that "good time serves as compensation for substandard wages paid to inmates for jobs done during incarceration."

Corrections chief Joseph Vitek wrote that "I believe this bill, if passed, would contribute to the solution of our present good time problem."

A third letter, signed by two penal complex inmates, said the new law "demands more of the inmate in the way of performance, and we are willing to live with these increased demands."

"We are in complete accord with (LB567) and totally support its concepts," their letter said.

Ford Does Not Want 'Pretentious' Marker

Washington (AP) — President Ford has advised Nebraska Sen. Roman Hruska that he does not "look for a lavish or pretentious monument" at the site of the Omaha house in which he was born.

The President wrote to Hruska to thank him for providing $2,000 for awards in a design competition for University of Nebraska architectural students to design a marker for the birthplace.

The Paxson Foundation has purchased the Omaha lot where the house in which Ford was born stood until it was destroyed by fire several years ago.

Ford's letter to Hruska said: "I welcome your thought that a modest marking at the site done in good taste would be most desirable.

"I do nonetheless recognize (that it does serve to heighten the interest of people in American history when they identify with places, particularly in their own community, which relate to a president or to some event of historical significance. Thus, I do very much appreciate your thoughtful and generous effort to encourage architectural students of the university to apply their skills and creativeness in designing an appropriate and interesting historical marker.

"I can well imagine how exciting it will be for the students who compete with their designs and how rewarding it will be to the ones who are chosen to receive the money prizes you have made possible.

"I remember fondly the occasion of my visit in Omaha last year when we all visited the lot where the house had stood."

Omaha City Councilman Considers Senate Contest

Omaha (AP) — Omaha City Councilman Monte Taylor is "seriously thinking" about a try for Congress.

Taylor says a lot depends on what Sen. Roman Hruska does.

Hruska, who will be up for reelection in 1976, has not yet announced definite plans.

Rep. John McCollister has said he will seek Hruska's Senate seat if Hruska decides to retire.

Taylor, an attorney, represented McCollister in the Omaha area for two years. Taylor's four-year council term ends in May 1977.

Taylor, a Republican, as are McCollister and Hruska, was Douglas County election commissioner from 1967 to 1970. He also served as counsel to a U.S. Senate subcommittee and as assistant to Hruska from 1961 to 1963.

Director/Counselor Mental Health Clinic

The Pioneer Mental Health Clinic is a rural affiliate of the Mid-Nebraska Community Mental Health Center, Grand Island, Nebraska. It is located in Broken Bow, a central business community in the Nebraska sandhills, which is cattle, corn and grain country.

After several years of being a satellite of the Grand Island Center, the clinic has now been established as an independent affiliate, and a Director/Counselor is needed to work in conjunction with the local Board of Directors in continuing established programs and beginning new ones as needed by the community.

The Director/Counselor must have a blend of administrative and clinical skills as he/she will be functioning at a relatively independent level, though there will be continuing support from and liaison with the Grand Island Center. Consultants from the Center will continue in program assistance at Broken Bow, but the primary caseload will be on the Director/Counselor.

For Director/Counselor we are seeking a person with an MSW degree, or an M.A. in a relevant field of study. The position starts at $14,000 to $14,500 per year, depending on qualifications, with generous vacation and convention time off, annual stipend for continuing professional development, and a health insurance package.

If you are interested in this position, please forward your professional resume and the names and addresses of at least three professional references. This position is available immediately.

ALWAYS TEACHING . . . Schafer demonstrates point on William McKinzie

First Aid Is His First Love

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

The time: Sunday afternoon, nine years ago.

The place: The international boat show at Capitol Beach Lake.

The players: Don Schafer and an injured youngster. More than 100 boats lined the beach, on display for all to inspect. A 4-year-old boy ran around the corner of a boat right into a boat propeller.

His fate was cut badly and bleeding.

Schafer, just another person in the crowd, picked up the youngster and "ran for this tent," a first aid shelter.

Just Beginning

Little did Schafer know that act would be just the beginning of a new-found devotion to the physical well-being of others.

He can't remember a time that he wasn't fascinated by medicine. He once wanted to be a doctor, he said, but the cost rapidly dispelled that notion.

Schafer was so impressed by the first aid instructors who doctored the lad — "When they finished they had that little guy chuckling and laughing," he recalled — that he decided to do the next best thing.

He went right out and enrolled in first aid classes. Schafer not only wanted to learn how to practice emergency first aid, but teach it as well. "I took every course — five of them — twice under different instructors so when I started teaching I would do it properly," Schafer said.

Since then, he has become so involved in first aid that little time is left for himself and his family.

Schafer, formerly a printer, spends nights as a custodian at Everett School.

His mornings are equally budgeted. Mondays and Tuesdays, he teaches at Southeast Community College in Milford. Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays he spends explaining the techniques of resuscitation, bandaging, splinting and the like at the local Red Cross house.

Wednesdays Open

"Wednesdays are open," he said, "for planning and research and reading on the latest techniques."

In his rare spare time, Schafer remodels his home. All that's left is the kitchen, which the instructor plans to get to . . . someday.

"Sunday is our idle day," Schafer said. "We just have to relax." His enthusiasm for teaching and practicing first aid has rubbed off on his wife, who has become an instructor. "We work as a team," he said proudly.

Last year alone, Schafer taught 40 first aid courses, each of about six weeks' duration. "And I've trained most of the police force," he said.

He devotes more than 20 hours each week teaching his classes. It's all a volunteer effort. The reward he reaps is the self-satisfaction of helping others help still others.

Wherever Needed

He has taught first aid at the Penal Complex, Lincoln Regional Center — wherever there is a need.

He and his wife also spent one full weekend teaching a crash course in first aid to 25 residents of the tiny burg of Dannerville, located some 25 miles from the nearest hospital or doctor.

But he also practices what he teaches.

He and Mrs. Schafer donate their time to manning the first aid stations at University of Nebraska and local high school football games. For three years they were in charge of first aid at Pershing Auditorium "but we had to give it up," he said. "We were too involved in our teaching."

He also practices the techniques wherever he is needed. His car is a mobile emergency room. In it he carries his massive first aid kit, splints, blankets and other equipment. In his every coat pocket can be found something related to first aid.

"It's a real good feeling to be able to rescue somebody, to save someone's life," said the enthusiastic instructor and practitioner of first aid.

"It is each individual's civic responsibility to see they have some type of first aid training," Schafer said. "They can use it on the job, at home, on the streets, on the highways."

"I only wish I had a job where I could do nothing but teach first aid," he said.

That day may come sooner than he thinks. Schafer, 60, plans to retire in two years.

But he doesn't plan to slow down.

"I plan to continue my teaching of first aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation."

Remodeling that kitchen just may have to wait.

Landowner Threatens Hiking Trail

New Tripoli, Pa. (UPI) — Howard S. Greenwalt has his price. And if it isn't paid, he says he will close down a section of the Appalachian Trail that runs across his land. The trail is a popular hiking path that runs from Maine to Georgia.

Greenwalt, 80, a retired farmer and carpenter, said the Lehigh County commissioners have cheated him out of $5,000 he wants in addition to the $6,200 they paid for 5.6 acres of his land.

The commissioners condemned the wooded hillside to add to the Leaser Lake Recreation Area. They say Greenwalt made a killing on the deal, despite his complaints.

"He knew darn well that buying that land at $150 and selling it for $6,200 regardless of the period of time is a sizeable profit," said Commissioner Ernest Stiegler.

Greenwalt has been living here since 1948. Another of his land investments covers the top of a mountain where the Appalachian Trail runs. It cost him $42.27 in 1949 for 11 acres.

"The trail is open now because it is my land and I say it is open," Greenwalt said. "If they don't pay me the money, I'll close it. I can't afford to lose that money."

Greenwalt said he is angry because he was offered $9,600 for the land by a private developer just months before the county commissioners condemned it.

Women's Law Caucus Has Plans

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

The creation of a women's law caucus was probably as predictable as the increasing number of women admitted to the University of Nebraska College of Law.

Women now compose 15% of the 485-strong student body.

An informal, ad hoc group of women organized several years ago for camaraderie as much as anything else, has given way to a still growing and groping organization which aims to get things done, says Becky Glover, current president.

The need for women to share common problems, ranging from child care to transportation, is still an important function of the group, she agreed.

But the caucus, she believes, also can structure efforts to sensitize others to the discrimination the women say they feel in the legal profession.

For example, Ms. Glover, a junior, said people are always asking her if she's really going to practice law when she graduates. "Men don't take us seriously," she added.

Ms. Glover also said the caucus is working toward reducing discrimination in local and state-wide hiring practices.

"Law firms only ask for interviews with the men on Law Review," she said. "Private firms have just not hired women."

The women have also lobbied for a new course at the law school on "women and the law."

Although some moves have been made on paper, Ms. Glover says the new curriculum offering is not yet a reality because funds are lacking.

The caucus extends membership to men students, some of whom, Ms. Glover says, have been "extremely supportive."

An information-giving group, the caucus puts out a pamphlet for all women who inquire about applying to law school. The brochure, Ms. Glover explained, tells about the status of women at the law school and in the legal community. That discrimination exists in both places is more than hinted at, Ms. Glover added.

Right now the caucus is gathering forces for a 10-strong delegation to the annual Women and the Law conference March 21-23 at Stanford University.

Male students and faculty have helped with bake sales to raise funds for the trip. All-school skits have rallied support for the delegation, as well as added coins to the conference coffers.

Ms. Glover hopes the conference-goers, nine women and one man, will come back as resource people in the community for women who have particular legal problems.

Foolish 50s Require Understanding

DEAR ABBY: My husband was just 50. All of a sudden, Melvin started changing his shirt three times before going to work. He was working overtime, putting extra miles on his car, but was always short of money, so I figured something was up.

I asked a few questions, put two and two together, and found out the reason. She is a 24-year-old girl who works where Melvin works. She worked all summer in hot pants, and the place was air-conditioned. I understand that "Hot Pants" has been having lunch and coffee breaks with my Melvin, and they use the company parking lot for a "lover's lane."

When I asked Melvin about "Hot Pants" he said the poor kid has had a lot of problems, and he's been helping her get her life straightened out. Abby, that "poor kid" is divorced, has two kids, and makes $5.50 an hour. People who have seen her say she could win a Miss America contest if she put a sack over her head.

How do I keep Melvin from making a fool of himself over her?

MELVIN'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: It may be too late. But if he's acting as a counselor for her, he may need a counselor himself. Don't nag or humiliate him. A man in the foolish 50s needs an understanding wife.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to something you recently had in your column. I quote:

"What's the difference between a lady and a diplomat? When a diplomat says 'yes,' he means maybe. When a diplomat says 'no,' he's no diplomat. When a lady says 'no,' she means maybe. When a lady says 'maybe,' she means yes. When a lady says 'yes,' she's no lady."

Your comment: "Thanks for a dandy day brighter."

Abby, that joke is indeed old, and should be dead. It's a degrading sexist gambit that makes invalid assumptions about women, and furthermore renders them powerless. I wish to amend that old story to read as follows:

I care not about diplomats, but,

When a woman says "yes," she means yes.

When a woman says "maybe," she means maybe.

And when a woman says "no," she means no.

And if a man persists, or uses force ... he's a rapist!

CAROL IN HILO

DEAR CAROL: Thanks for setting me straight. I deserved it.

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years, but never thought I'd be writing to you.

Now, my problem: A close relative of mine was recently married. The wedding was out of state so we didn't attend, but we sent a wedding present that cost over $100.

Today, I received a letter from the bride's mother. Along with it, she sent five pictures of the wedding. She wrote, "The pictures are $1 each. You can square it with us later." In other words, "pay up."

Abby, I think this is in very poor taste. In fact, I have never heard of "selling" wedding pictures to close relatives.

Should I return the pictures? (I don't really want them.) Or should I keep the pictures and send her five dollars? Or just keep the pictures and not send anything?

STUNNED

DEAR STUNNED: Return the pictures with a note thanking her for "sharing" them with you.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20c) envelope.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Gould's pass of one notrump was unusual, but he knew that the bidding would not die at that point because his opponents (Bobby Goldman and Mark Blumenthal of the Dallas Aces) were playing the notrump response as a forcing bid.

When Goldman bid two hearts and the next two players passed, Gould began to make up for lost time with a cuebid in hearts. This pleased Shepherd mightily, as he had an exceptionally good hand considering his previous silence, and he indicated this by responding four hearts—a cuebid of his own.

Gould needed no further urging and he jumped to six clubs. He realized that Shepherd had spade and diamond strength for his cuebid. North, who assumed his partner had a two-suited hand rather than a one-suiter, corrected six clubs to six diamonds, expecting to find either a diamond or spade fit.

But South, who had a one-track mind, persisted by bidding seven clubs, and West, under the impression that his opponents were suffering from delusions of grandeur, doubled. West led a heart, but Gould ruffed, drew trumps, played the ace of diamonds and made 13 tricks, without a finesse, for a score of 2,330 points.

That's how championships are won!

The Spingold team of four champions was won last year by the relatively unknown foursome of Steve Goldberg, Lou Bluhm, Richard Shepherd and Larry Gould, all of Georgia.

This deal proved to be decisive in one of their matches. Shepherd and Gould bid and made a grand slam, doubled, after West had opened one heart and East responded one notrump.

Planning Commission Nixes Haymarket Plans

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

Tear down the buildings, perhaps put in public parking and wait for better development opportunities.

That was the recommendation of the City-County Planning Commission Wednesday as it turned down the two current proposals for development of Haymarket Square.

Rejected on a 5-1 vote by the commission were proposals to turn the square into a six-story motel-convention center complex or a newspaper warehousing and parking area.

Neither proposal conforms to City Council guidelines for the block, billed as the entryway to Lincoln, according to the Planning Commission.

The plan by the Journal-Star Printing Co. to build a warehouse and possibly office space, to be screened by a garden wall and green tree area, is not an appropriate use for the block, according to a recommendation by the City Planning Department. Warehousing would not increase land values or act as a catalyst for new development in the surrounding area, the report said.

And though the motel-hotel complex, proposed by a Sioux City firm, is in line with the type of development the city wants for the site, the firm's plan does not meet the minimum landscaping requirements, the report to the Planning Commission stated.

"I don't think that storage facility or a motel-hotel is the right use of that ground," said commission member Art Duerschner, who recommended waiting for a plan more in line with the city's development guidelines.

"I'm sure there are people waiting in the wings" with possible proposals, he said.

The land located in the block bounded by 9th and 10th, Q and R Sts. is the former site of the city police and fire stations.

The two proposals have already been rejected by the Downtown Advisory Committee (DAC).

The idea that the city should retain control of the block, tear down existing structures and perhaps put in parking while determining the possible long-term use of the land was presented by Barbara Henderson, a DAC member.

"This is a key area in the downtown and it is very opportune that the city own it and control its development," said Mrs. Henderson, presenting a third alternative during a public hearing.

The Journal-Star Printing Co., which is proposing to buy the block, demolish buildings and turn the area into a landscaped parking lot with plans to build a warehousing operation and possibly office space on part of the block, also presented plans at the hearing.

Joe R. Seacrest, executive vice president and board chairman of the Journal Star Printing Co., personally assured the commission that the publishing company, if it purchased the land, would quickly put in a hard-surfaced, landscaped public parking lot as the first step in its long-range plans.

Hundreds Of Aliens In Omaha Illegally

Omaha (AP) — The head of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization office has estimates there are hundreds of aliens in the city illegally.

About 25 to 50 are taken into custody in the metropolitan area monthly and Les Hoppes says "we would probably get more if we had the manpower and the budget."

Hoppes says the Omaha office, which has jurisdiction over Nebraska and Iowa, has a budget of $2,500 per month to transport aliens back to their countries.

The majority of aliens picked up in the two-state area are from Mexico and Hoppes says it costs from $1,500 to $2,000 per busload of about 35 to transport them back to Mexico.

Special Meeting Is Scheduled On Land Subdivision Ordinance

After local developers strenuously objected to a proposal requiring future subdivisions of more than four houses to put in a community sewage system, the City-County Planning Commission Wednesday voted to set up a special meeting on a proposed land subdivision ordinance.

The meeting to review the ordinance, which will affect subdivisions within three miles of the city limits, will be held March 5 at 7 p.m. in the County-City Building.

During the more than four-hour meeting Wednesday, the commission deferred any action on a recommendation to eliminate the Southeast Radial between 70th St. and 84th from the Comprehensive Plan.

The deletion, which would affect a small part of the proposed radial, was requested by developer Duane Larson. He is proposing to subdivide land through which the Southeast Radial was to run.

The commission appeared split over the recommendation and fearing that any decision now might be premature, agreed to postpone a decision until after a new Comprehensive Plan is approved.

Attorneys File Counter Motion For Briarhurst

Attorneys for Boetel & Co. of Omaha and the Briarhurst II Ltd. Corp., which runs the Lincoln apartment complex of the same name, have asked Lancaster County District Court Judge William Hastings to rescind his Feb. 18 order granting possession of the Briarhurst Apartments to Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. of New York.

In a motion filed in answer to the insurance company's foreclosure petition filed last week, defendants Boetel & Co. and Briarhurst II Ltd. allege Hastings' order violates the "long-recognized legal and equitable principles governing foreclosure of mortgages" in Nebraska.

They also claim that the U.S. District Court in Omaha has exclusive jurisdiction over the debts and property because the Briarhurst corporation has filed a petition of bankruptcy with that court.

The board also unanimously approved a special permit for the second phase construction of Tabitha Village, a retirement community being built at 27th and Fletcher Ave.

Thirty townhouses and 36 homes are planned in this phase.

The commission also took action on the following items:

- Approved a change of zone at 2nd and Garfield from A-2 single family to K-1 light industrial.
- Denied zone change at 48th and LaSalle from A-2 single family to D multiple family.
- Denied zone change at 27th and Superior from A-2 single family to K-1 light industrial and H-2 highway commercial, and from H-2 highway commercial to K-1 light industrial.
- Denied zone change at 49th and Pioneers Blvd. from A-2 single family to B-2 family.
- Carried over because of lack of a majority a zone change at 70th and Adams from A-2 single family to G local business.
- Approved zone change at 33rd and Sheridan Blvd. from K-1 light industrial and A-1 single family to G local business.
- Approved a special permit amendment to community unit plan of Neerpark and Neerpark replat, preliminary plat and final plat, 56th and Calvert Sts.
- Approved proposed vacation, on the condition that easement is provided, of 53rd St. from Normal Blvd. to Glade St.

Attempted Rape, Theft Reported By Woman, 94

Police are investigating the assault and attempted rape of a 94-year-old woman in her south Lincoln home Saturday.

Police said a man came to the woman's house and first asked to use the telephone, then asked to use the bathroom.

The woman told police that when the man emerged from the bathroom he had taken his clothes off and forced her into a bedroom where he tried to push her onto the bed and grabbed at her clothes.

Police said the woman resisted and tried to reason with the man. He apparently changed his mind, police said, and took a small amount of money from her wallet and left.

The suspect is described as a white male, about 27 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall with a slender build.

Buying Club, Coupons Can Cut Food Costs

By JOANNE FARRIS

QUESTION: — One of our neighbors has suggested that we start a neighborhood buying club. He says we can save money by buying in quantity if we work together. Do you have any suggestions?

ANSWER: — I just read about a book on that very subject. It's called, "The Food Conspiracy Cookbook — How to Start a Neighborhood Buying Club and Eat Cheaply," by Lois Wiskstrom. ($3.95, 101 Productions, San Francisco, Calif.) I read about it in Vol. IV, No. 3, of "Catalyst" magazine, which itself is a pretty interesting publication if you're concerned about our environment.

A letter to Vivian Fletcher, editor, CATALYST, 33 East 46th St., New York, N.Y. 10017, might elicit some more information about the book and perhaps about other books on the subject of buying clubs.

Another item that I heard about recently that may be of interest to quite a few of you is a newsletter called, "The Treasure Chest," P.O. Box 1132, New Brunswick, N.J. 08903. It keeps an up-to-date listing of companies that offer full or partial refunds on the cost of merchandise in exchange for their boxtops, labels, or coupons.

Other companies offer premiums for trying new products. One reader has written that she saves as much as $600 a year by taking advantage of every such offer that comes with any merchandise she buys. But, she cautions, don't buy something you can't use or enjoy just to get a refund. "The Treasure Chest" has another feature, it carries ads from persons who have coupons they would like to exchange.

An even simpler way to save up to a dollar or two everytime you shop is to watch your local newspaper for coupons. I saved 50 cents on a 10-ounce jar of instant coffee last weekend just that way.

The reader who saves the $600 on coupons and refunds has a few other hints about ways that she and her husband save and have fun at the same time. They bicycle wherever they can, saving gas and improving their health.

They both really enjoy gardening, and they discovered the family vegetable garden idea long before President Ford suggested that we resurrect the "Victory Gardens" of the 1940s. Of course, they have a freezer, which enables them to grow enough vegetables to last through the winter. In their part of the country they fish and hunt and lay up these items in the freezer, too.

I couldn't tell from what she wrote whether both she and her husband tinker with the family car, doing much of the regular maintenance chores, but her message came across loud and clear anyway.

She and her husband share their living, and they both get joy and economic security from it.

QUESTION: — Do you believe that stuff about plants growing better when the gardener talks softly to them or plays music for them?

ANSWER: — I'm not sure, but I bet you'll agree that anyone you know who has a "green thumb" when it comes to indoor plants shows pretty clearly that she enjoys the plants and likes taking care of them. Just maybe the plants know that, too. Incidentally, a few weeks ago we were talking about leisure-time activities that a person can do alone, and indoor gardening is one more.

It doesn't have to take a lot of time, space, or money. Yet the resulting pleasure from looking at even one plant that you are caring for is nice.

Popular Library, New York, N.Y., has put out a paperback book called, "Little Plants For Small Spaces." It sells for $1.50 and is full of helpful hints about kinds of mini-plants to choose and how to grow them indoors. It also has information about tiny plants and trees for outside mini-gardens.

Panel Nixes Cut In Social Security Hike

Washington (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee rejected on Wednesday President Ford's plan to cut Social Security benefit increases scheduled to become effective this year.

"I just don't think Congress will go along with the President on this," said committee Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La.

Under previously approved legislation, Social Security benefits are scheduled to rise by an average 8 7/8% in July. In an effort to hold down federal spending, Ford has proposed to reduce that increase to 5%, at a saving of $2.5 billion this year.

The committee also agreed tentatively to oppose Ford's plan to hold down planned increases in the federal program for the blind, aged and disabled known as Supplemental Security Income.

SSI recipients are scheduled to get the same 8 7/8% hike in benefits in July. Ford wants to cut that rate to 5%, at a saving of $85 million this year.

House Ways and Means Committee members have indicated they, too, will reject Ford's plan to hold down expenditures in these social programs.

The Finance Committee, which has Senate jurisdiction over taxes and Social Security, took no action on a proposal, being drafted by a Democratic task force, to provide a $2.4-billion cost-of-living increase in Social Security benefits, retroactive to Jan. 1.

Second National Open Learning Conference Planned

Washington, D.C. — Plans to convene a second National Conference on Open Learning and Nontraditional Study were announced here Thursday by the University of Mid-America, the Joint Council on Educational Telecommunications and the Council for the Progress of Non-traditional Study.

"Designing Diversity '75" will be held in Washington June 17-19.

Registration is open for the conference, which takes its name from the 1973 final report of the Commission on Non-traditional Study.

Conference coordinator C. Edward Cavert said the theme of looking back to move forward will provide the springboard for a forum among educators to examine teaching and current thought about technology-based open learning systems and other issues in nontraditional studies.

The first national conference was held in Lincoln in 1974, sponsored by the State University of Nebraska (SUN) open learning project and the Great Plains National Instructional Television Library.

SUN laid the groundwork for creating the University of Mid-America (UMA), a regional open learning program governed by five Midwestern state universities, headquartered in Lincoln and funded principally by the National Institute of Education.

The Council for the Progress of Nontraditional Study is a follow-up activity to the work of the 1973 commission and is chaired by Dr. Samuel B. Gould, former chancellor of the State University of New York.

The Joint Council on Educational Telecommunications, originally organized to secure channels for what has become public TV, now is concerned with the educational implications of such technologies as cable, videocassettes and communications satellites. William G. Harley, president of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters, is Joint Council president.

Huskers Edge OSU, 59-58

By VIRGIL PARKER

Stillwater, Okla. — Coach Joe Cipriano's Nebraska basketball team followed the usual script for a road game here Wednesday night against the Oklahoma State Cowboys.

—The game was decided by a single point.

—The Huskers opponent put up a shot at the gun that swished through the net.

But, unlike the K-State game a week earlier, the Cowboy shot was ruled after the gun and the Cornhuskers finally won a one-pointer, 59-58.

Nebraska, committing just three turnovers through the first half while building a nine-point advantage, gave a meager Gallagher Hall crowd of 3,100 a lot of hope and thrills at the end, however.

The Huskers were guilty of four turnovers in the last 49 seconds to give OSU plenty of chances to pull it out. But coach Guy Strong's club failed to take advantage.

Cipriano's crew was once again plagued by foul troubles and a foe who controlled the offensive boards.

Nebraska never had a one-and-one chance from the free throw line. The Huskers made nine of just 14 charity chances, while Oklahoma State canned 14 of 18 free throws to stay close.

Though the final foul count was just 17-13 against NU, center Larry Cox had three fouls after the first three minutes which caused Cipriano to start a juggling act in order to keep all his troops in the fray.

Midway through the first half Nebraska broke out in front with some help from OSU's Layfayette Threatt.

NU's Steve Erwin put up a shot from the free throw line with the score tied, 15-all. There was little arch on the effort — until Threatt blocked the attempt with his fingertips. Then it sailed 15 feet straight up — and swished down, right through the hoop.

The Huskers soon grabbed the game's biggest bulge at 34-25, but the Cowboys closed the gap to six, 34-28, at the halftime break.

OSU came out to knot the count again, 34-34, at the outset of the second stanza and the Huskers never led by more than four the rest of the way, while Oklahoma State was in front by one six different times.

NU's Jerry Fort, who led all scorers with 21 points, added to his school career record, and came within one of tying Stu Lantz' record of 478 points tallied by a player.

But it was a Fort pass — not a basket — which proved to make the difference.

With 1:27 left he led a NU, fast break. When the Cowboys converged on the Husker sharpshooter he passed off to Erwin who canned a 15-footer to produce Nebraska's final points.

After a mused shot by each side, Nebraska's woes began. The second turnover of the final minute — at the 49-second mark — resulted in a steal by Daniel and a layup which registered the final count.

Another Nebraska miscue at the 36-second mark gave the Cowboys two more shots, one by Daniel and the other by guard K. C. Kincaide, who led the losers with 15 points.

The last turnover came with just one second left. The Cowboy strategy called for a court-length pass and a quick shot.

The inbounds pass was slapped away by Cox. And a good thing! OSU's Andy Hopson picked the ball off the floor and fired in desperation. But gun beat him — and the Cowboys.

"It's sure nice to finally win a one-pointer," Cipriano said afterward. "Fort's shooting, Erwin's clutch basket and good defensive play and the fine effort by Eric Coard at the other guard for just a freshman, plus Bob Siegel having another great game on the boards was the difference."

Fort, who scored just three points against the Cowboys here last year, missed his first six attempts from the field. "I started thinking about last year and was afraid it was going to be a another of those nights again," Fort admitted. I just kept putting it up until I found the range."

Cipriano wasn't as worried as his junior star. "Jerry has had several games where he's come back from a poor first half to lead us to victory. I was sure he'd get it going."

While the rest of the league pairs up Saturday night the Huskers are off until next Wednesday when they host conference co-leader Kansas in the Coliseum.

'Ailing' Norfolk Eyes NP Contest

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Norfolk's basketball team isn't traveling to North Platte Friday in a caravan of ambulances for the Big 10 Conference playoff.

But the Panthers may need them coming back. The physical grind of the playoff is bound to take its toll.

Norfolk (9-7), set back by sickness in recent weeks, would have preferred that Grand Island qualify for the Big 10 playoff.

"We certainly wouldn't have been regretful if Grand Island had qualified," Norfolk coach Tom Millsap said. "That would have given us more time to prepare for district next week."

Norfolk's rash of illness could qualify for a scene in Medical Center.

"It all started the weekend we played Fremont and Hastings (Feb. 7 and 8)," Millsap recounted. "During that week, we had one practice. We had two practices the next and one last week."

"It's been the flu with a temperature that really hangs on," he explained. "Our kids have picked up colds along with it. They've lost weight and they look terrible."

"We were really playing well until all this sickness struck," Millsap added. "We thought about canceling our Fremont and Hastings games. As it turned out, we probably would have been better off."

"We've really slipped," Millsap said. "Our timing is off. Our conditioning is way behind. Until this Monday, we haven't had more than three of our top 12 players at the same practice."

The Panthers' top seven, however, attended practice

Malito, Thompson Top NU Runners

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Chuck Malito and Mike Thompson have the best chances to win individual titles for Nebraska Friday and Saturday in the 47th annual Big Eight Conference indoor track and field championships at Kansas City's new Kemper Arena.

The Cornhuskers, however, don't figure to place very high in the team race because only 12 athletes have been entered in the competition.

"We're going to the meet with a streamlined group and we hope to do the best job we can," coach Frank Sevigne said before Wednesday's workout. "We are taking only the athletes we think can score points and not just a lot of people for the ride."

Malito, defending outdoor champion in the 440-yard dash, figures to have the best shot at a title. His indoor best this winter has been a :48.2 effort in a triangular meet at Kansas, the second best quartermile ever run by a Husker.

Malito set a school record of :30.8 seconds in the 300-yard dash in the Michigan State Relays. Unfortunately, however, the 300 isn't on the Big Eight schedule of events.

Thompson, freshman sprinter from Omaha who came to Nebraska as a football recruit, has gone :06.2 seconds in the 60-yard dash and has to figure to have a shot at the title.

The competition, however, will be keen as it usually is in that event. Five sprinters from conference schools have been timed in :06.1 seconds and seven others have equalled Thompson's time.

The Cornhuskers will not have entries in every event, but has some strength in the middle distance races. Shot put hopes were cut in half when Steve Millard turned up with a case of the chicken pox, leaving the load on Steve Jepsen.

Here are Nebraska's entries:

60 — Mike Thompson; 440 — Chuck Malito; 800 — Tom Dovel (1:12.9) and Don Grow (1:13.1); 880 — Chris Grieb (1:56.4) and Paul McClain (1:57.3); 1,000 — Matt Reckmeyer (2:15.5) and Keith Whitaker (no time); 2-mile — Harold Stelzer (9:02.6); high jump — Dean Herzog (6-8); triple jump — Dave Green (48-2¾); and shot put — Steve Jepsen (53-5½).

Husker Matmen Ready For Big 8 Meet

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska wrestling coach Orval Borgialli has good reason for thinking big for the Huskers in the Big Eight Wrestling Championships at Stillwater, Okla., this Friday and Saturday.

Four NU grapplers, Tim Rimpley, (118), Tony Jennings (134) Bob Johnson (190) and Bruce Conger (Hwt), have excellent chances of capturing Big Eight individual titles.

"If we place three or four wrestlers in first or second place, we can count on getting the title," said Borgialli.

"We don't have the overall strength or depth that Oklahoma State, or Iowa State has. But we do have three or four individuals with a good chance of winning."

Borgialli hopes Nebraska can finish among the top three teams. The previous Nebraska best in Borgialli's 11-year NU coaching stint was third place in 1962.

"There's no reason we can't be thinking seriously about taking the crown. If we have the attitude that we had going into the Kansas and Oklahoma State dual matches, we should be okay," said Borgialli.

"OSU has a 20-point advantage just being at home in Gallagher Hall," said Borgialli referring to the Cowboys' fieldhouse named after the famed OSU wrestling coach Ed Gallagher.

Oklahoma State, 14-2 and currently second in the nation, behind Iowa, is also the defending Big Eight champion.

Returning conference individual champions include OSU's Billy Martin (126), Steve Barrett (134) and Rick Jones (177).

Iowa State, which has scored five championships, three seconds, one third and one fourth in the NCAA championships in the past ten years, is also a heavy favorite to win the Big Eight.

"Iowa State is usually looking to the NCAA championships about this time of year," said Borgialli, "and they are not at a peak for the Big Eight meet this early."

ISU returns defending champions Bob Holland (150), Pete Galea (142), and Al Nacin (190).

Nebraska's Bruce Conger, however, is a favorite in the heavyweight division.

"I plan to stick with the basics," said the 330-pound sophomore from Las Vegas, Nev. "I may be more aggressive for a meet like this than others. Because in a meet like this you want to get your pins early in the meet to save your strength for the later matches. You can wrestle two or three times a day at some of these meets."

Conger's top competition should come from Oklahoma State freshman Jimmy Jackson. Jackson is responsible for the tie on Conger's 23-2-1 record.

Both men scored escapes in a dual against OSU and NU two weeks ago in Stillwater.

"Jackson and I have beat everybody else in the conference. And with a couple of good moves I could take him in the meet," said Conger.

The match with Jackson was the first one since the Sunshine Open in Miami, Fla., late in December. Four straight opponents forfeited to Conger until the OSU match.

Conger pinned his Drake for last week in Nebraska's 25-15 victory.

"I think that the layoff has had some effect on me," said Conger. "You learn a lot more from your mistakes during a match than in practice."

"Some of the guys I practice against are a lot smaller than me. So I learn about being quicker but I use my weight or strength to overpower them."

And it's not like in a match against somebody my size," noted Conger. "You have to use more moves and technique against somebody of comparable size."

The top three individuals in the Big Eight qualify for the Nationals in Princeton, N.J.

Nebraska lineup and season records:
118 — Tim Rimpley 16-3-0; Mike Vranich 12-6 — Gary Harnisch, 14-7
134 — Tony Jennings, 23-3
142 — Joe Carr
150 — Doug Hassig, 9-5-1
158 — Tom Knobloch, 12-7-1
167 — Tom Luth, 5-1
177 — Bill Hoffman, 12-7
190 — Bob Johnson, 15-2
Hwt — Bruce Conger, 23-2-1

Swihart Expects Fast Track In Fonner Opener

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Grand Island — Al Swihart couldn't be happier.

"We have a lightning fast track and the extended forecast is for warmer weather," said the general manager of Fonner Park, which opens its 40-day horse racing season on Thursday. "We had more than 100 horses working out here on Tuesday and they really burned the track up."

Swihart, who predicts a crowd of 6,000 will attend the first day of Nebraska horse racing this year on Thursday, said the entire paved parking lot has been cleared of snow. Fonner can accommodate 5,000 cars.

The opening-day feature, the 4-furlong Inaugural Handicap, has been divided into two divisions of seven competitors each.

J. W. Kapperman's Sweet Disarco has been top-weighted by racing secretary Dean

Williams with 119 pounds in the first division while Al Turner's Lori's Song received high impost of 120 pounds in the second division.

Sweet Disarco, who captured an allowance stakes over 6-furlongs last season at Atokad Park, also triumphed in a scaleweight stakes at Park Jefferson at Jefferson, S.D.

Phil Like's War Princess may be the strongest threat of the 3-year-fillies to stop Sweet Disarco. At one point last season, War Princess captured four of five allowances or allowance stakes at LaMesa Park near Raton, N.M.

Les Horn's Felicity Queen, who broke her maiden last summer at the Lincoln State Fairgrounds, captured allowance races last year at Columbus and Atokad.

Sweet Disarco will be ridden by Gary Collier while War Princess has been assigned 118 pounds and Felicity Queen will carry 115 pounds.

Other first-division entrants and their weights include Clay and Struck's Miss Mundo, an invader from Arizona (116); Gumdrop Tree Stables' Impressive Mary (112 pounds, including Fred Ecoffey); Mamie Knosp's Pearl's Blue Lady (111) and J. O. Jones' Cool Grace (110 and David Pettinger).

In the second-division, Lori's Song should receive strong backing off her impressive Ak-Sar-Ben victory last year.

A jockey, L. J. Durosseau, has asked the Nebraska Supreme Court to overrule a State Racing Commission decision to suspend him until 1977 for allegedly possessing an electric prod. The incident occurred prior to the beginning of the eighth race at Ak-Sar-Ben on May 9, 1974.

Attorneys for Durosseau said the Racing Commission violated due process in suspending him, because at the first disciplinary hearing it was brought out that the commission lacked rules governing a contested proceeding.

That hearing occurred on May 21, 1974. On June 3, 1974, the commission held a hearing on proposed rules on how contested disciplinary actions should be handled. The commission adopted the rules on June 25, and at a second hearing on Durosseau's case on July 9 suspended him.

Ak-Sar-Ben security officials said that prior to the May 9 race, Durosseau was asked to dismount Star Nasrullah. He was subsequently searched, and an electrical device was found in his possession, security officers said. Attorneys argued that the Racing Commission attempted to adopt rules of procedure once their absence was pointed out, but they said the adoption does not confer jurisdiction retroactively.

The attorneys said the commission had operated without the rules for 15 years.

Mulligan scored a game high 20 points while Kim Hermes scored 12 points and grabbed numerous rebounds to help the Pius X girls end the season with a 5-6 mark.

It's All Outdoors

Dogs Make Difference

While touring the western part of the state recently, the Sacramento-Wilcox Game Management area report for 1974's pheasant season was handed me.

According to the data, 137 hunters took 191 pheasants in 121 hours of hunting. Nineteen crippled birds were reported lost and 74 per cent of the hunters used hunting dogs.

The 74 per cent may or may not amaze hunting dog owners but the point is, the majority of hunters in Nebraska are finding it more productive and more enjoyable hunting with dogs, as backed by the Sac-Wilcox report.

The hunters from Illinois, Indiana, Oklahoma, Missouri, Mississippi, Kansas, Tennessee, Texas and Nebraska turned in reports of one more bird per man this year over last year.

Hunting dogs are ideal for this state in finding birds, and, possibly more important, finding downed birds once the hunter has shot. The 19-loss-bird figure might have been lower if the other 26 per cent of the hunters had used dogs.

The voluntary game check should provide good propaganda for bird dog advocates in the future. Hunting dogs do help put more game in the game bag through finding and retrieving training, and losses are significantly reduced.

The Sac-Wilcox report also could add a little fuel to the fire for those calling for an incentive to use hunting dogs through hunting regulations allowing for one more bird for the dog. It's an added bag limit for those hunting with our four-legged friends . . . the best conservation tool hunters now have

Legislators Absent

And, while talking of saving game and nongame wildlife, the Nebraska Wildlife Habitat Conference recently completed in Lincoln had a massive turnout of interested parties. But the absences of a substantial number of one particular group must be of concern to many wildlife interests.

State legislators will be charged with the responsibility of setting up legislation to provide for wildlife programs discussed at the conference but only 12 of the 49 state senators took the time to attend the conference's weekend program

Some 130-plus interested landowners, environmentalists, biologists, wildlife groups, hunters and citizens of diverse backgrounds took part in the two-day workshop to find ways of saving habitat and thereby saving wildlife.

A stack of worthwhile programs were presented for consideration. Most will be in need of some sort of legislative move to permit them to function.

"That's right, without the legislation, we can't do anything," said Omahan Art Brown, conference organizer and one of the seven commissioners for the Game and Parks Commission. "We had hoped more of our state senators could have made it but it was a three-day weekend and most of them probably went home."

Several bills are currently being considered by the legislature on wildlife matters, including Sen. George Syas' bill to provide for a tax break to landowners not putting some lands into production. LB488 would then provide for one incentive for wildlife habitat management

But more are needed and the legislators are the ones in the drivers' seats. It could be do or die for wildlife management with or without legislative assistance in this state. Too bad more of the senators couldn't have attended the habitat conference to better understand what the problem really is and what they can do about it.

Doane To Face Hamline College

By Associated Press

The NCAA, Division III Coaches Selection Committee has chosen Hamline University of St. Paul, Minn., as the opponent for Doane College of Crete, Neb., in the division's western regional playoffs.

Doane, runnerup to Hastings College in the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference for the past two years, has already accepted the invitation to host the playoff March 8. The Tigers are 16-8 overall.

Hamline, once a major basketball power that sent several alumni to the then Minneapolis Lakers in the National Basketball Association, is a contender for the Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference crown, but must win their last two games. The Pipers are 15-9 on the year.

Hamline faculty representatives were scheduled to meet Wednesday afternoon to give formal acceptance to the invitation. School regulations require the vote, but no problems were foreseen.

The winner of the western regional will move on to the national tourney in mid-March.

NU's Epley To Lions

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Lions now have an assistant coach for strength and conditioning. He is Boyd Epley, 27, the weight-training coach at the University of Nebraska when he graduated in 1970.

"This field is a very specialized one, and a very important one nowadays," explained head Coach Rich Forzano. "We are striving to increase our player's strength and speed."

The Lions said Epley was the first weight-training coach in the Big 8 Conference. He was a pole vaulter at Nebraska and began weight training after an injury ended his track career.

"I feel that today's athletes cannot rely on their natural size and strength alone," said Epley. "By developing their strength and improving their conditioning we can help them become more productive."

Forzano said "It is imperative to develop explosiveness and quickness now in our very competitive league."

The two schools involved will be decided in Thursday night's semifinals when Lincoln High and Ralston clash and East High and host Millard battle in the other semifinal.

San Francisco — Fog and rain. We are gathering records for income tax. It's been a busy year. Not much coming in. A lot going out.

The accountant said: "You are in a good tax position."

As near as I could see, my position was flat on my back. But accountants have a peculiar outlook. Something like a cross-eyed person. You don't know if he's looking at you or in the other direction.

He said: "Sometime this year we must find you a tax shelter."

I said: "Find me a fox hole. I want to sit this one out."

For a while I had a tax shelter. I had a corporation. The corporation turned out cast iron adjectives and wooden verbs.

It was a great conversation piece. At 10 o'clock when guests didn't show signs of leaving, I could say:

"Have to get up early tomorrow. We're having a corporate meeting."

I took to reading the financial pages I wore ties and cuff links, even in the house.

None of this showed in the bank account. On paper I was the Wolf of Wall Street. But down at the village jug, the banker gave me peculiar looks.

I said to the lawyer: "The tax shelter is leaking."

He said: "We must be careful not to pierce the corporate veil." (I put that in my foxy pocket as a good remark to throw out at dinner parties.)

We never pierced the veil. And by and by the corporation just faded away. I kept the corporate seal for a paper weight.

This left me with nothing much to do. Except write like a fiend. Pay bills, help my oldest daughter with babysitting. And pay back money I'd borrowed.

I got a psychiatrist and took a lot of aspirin. My tax bill with the IRS didn't go up and it didn't go down.

I told the children: "The meek shall inherit the earth. Plus the property taxes thereon."

"If you wait for the boss to raise your pay, 'We'll all be waiting until Judgment Day, 'Gone to heaven, 'St. Peter will be the straw boss then."

The rainy days of February when we pick up the guitar and play mournful songs.

A chimpanzee's brain weighs only 375 grams. A fourth the size of the human brain.

Yet a movie chimp makes a whacking lot more money than I do.

The chimp can be taught to wear clothes and ride a bike and pretend to play the guitar. Voice and music can be dubbed in behind him and the effect is comical.

A Lesson to us all. (We should get rid of our big brains. Get a comical face and learn to ride a bike.)

Two-Day
Slide Ends
In Market

New York (AP) — Bargain hunting stimulated by renewed hopes for easier money lifted the stock market out of a two-session slide Wednesday.

But trading on the New York Stock Exchange slowed to its quietest pace in more than two weeks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials recovered 8.92 to 728.10 after a 30.59-point loss over the week's first two trading days.

The NYSE's composite index picked up 39 to 42.48, and gainers outnumbered losers 854 to 554 among the 1,784 issues traded on the Big Board.

The day's total turnover of 18.79 million shares was the lightest since a 16.47 million-share day on Feb. 11.

Prices weakened briefly at the outset, but had moved to the plus side by noon as bargain hunters attracted by the sharp declines since the start of the week began to do some selective buying.

The advance picked up momentum when Federal Reserve operations in the money markets indicated continued pursuit of a more expansive credit policy by the central bank.

The market then leveled off in the final hour with the government's report that the nation had a $3.91 billion budget deficit in January — sharply increased from December and from January a year ago.

Glamor stocks, which had been notable losers Monday and Tuesday, rebounded strongly. IBM gained 4 1/2 to 212. Walt Disney Productions 1 1/2 to 91 1/4 and Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing 1 1/4 to 51 3/4.

Oils also did well, with Getty up 1 1/2 to 141. Exxon ahead 1 1/2 to 76 1/4. Atlantic Richfield 1 1/2 higher at 82 1/4, and Standard Oil of California ahead 1/2 to 25.

Brokers said it appeared investors and oil companies generally were reasonably happy with Britain's proposed 45 per cent tax on gross revenues from offshore oil.

ITE Imperial gained 2 1/2 to 17 1/2 on news of plans for a merger with Raytheon Corp. Raytheon shares were down 1 1/2 to 31 1/2.

Harrah's jumped 1 1/2 to 15 1/4. The company said it was discussing with Austria the possibility of starting gambling casino operations if such operations were legalized in that country.

Woodman and Lite president E. J. Faulkner reported record gains during 1974 in assets, income earned, benefits paid, new insurance written and life insurance in force at the annual policyholders meeting.

Faulkner said assets increased more than 9% to $133,047,000, life insurance in force grew by 11 1/2% to $1,150,909,000, and income for the year was $45,034,000, compared to $42,889,000 reported in 1973.

Benefits provided amounted to $28.6 million, and dividends paid to policyholders were over $3.3 million, compared to about $2.8 million reported in 1973.

Investment returns were especially good in 1974, Faulkner said, with a net yield of 6 1/2%. That exceeds the estimated average return for the life insurance business as a whole, he said.

Directors re-elected for a three-year term were R. L. Spangler, C. W. Faulkner, Paul C. Schorr Jr., Thomas H. Wake and George P. Abel.

Sale Of Mineral Leases At Sidney Delayed

Sidney (AP) — The federal government has postponed the sale of oil and gas leases on 16,800 acres of land north and west of Sidney that once housed the Sioux Army Depot.

A Bureau of Land Management news release said Wednesday the scheduled March 12 bid opening is moved back until summer because the U. S. Geological Survey requested more time to determine minimum acceptable bids.

It was the second time in two years that a move to free the minerals under the former government reservation had been frustrated at the last minute.

In May of 1973, the General Services Administration's plan to sell the mineral rights was called off less than 24 hours before the bids were to have been opened.

Officials said later that the Bureau of Land management had objected to the GSA plan to sell them rights instead of leasing them. The responsibility of leasing the rights was then delegated to the BLM through its Wyoming office.

Geologists for the Nebraska Oil and Gas Conservation Commission have said there is evidence of oil and gas deposits under the property. The government-retained mineral rights after selling the land in the late 1960s, following the phase-out of the ammunition depot.

Elwin Price, information officer for the BLM Cheyenne office, said the geological survey apparently had not completed its work on determining the minimum acceptable bids for each of the 30 tracts in the offering.

Aurora Slaying Suspect Also Accused In Kansas

ABILENE, Kan. (AP) — A first-degree murder charge has been filed here against Cecil Henry Floyd, who has pleaded guilty to three other murders in Florida and is charged with a fourth in Nebraska.

Dickinson County Atty. Steve Opat said he filed the charge Tuesday in the death of a man whose decomposed body was found near Upland, Kan., July 24. The body, never identified, is believed to be that of a hitchhiker who was in his 20s, Opat said.

Floyd, 34, is awaiting sentencing in Orlando, Fla., after pleading guilty to three murder charges there. He and his wife, Lorna Barrett Floyd, are also charged with the July 12 slaying of Lester Schmidt, 24, of Aurora, Neb., a service station attendant.

Opat said he has begun extradition proceedings to have Floyd brought to Kansas from Florida to stand trial.

Big Embassy Planned

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The Soviet Union plans to build one of the largest embassies in this West German capital.

1. C-55-405 — Stream crossing on the west line of Section 2, T11N, R6E of the 6th P.M.
2. C-55-406 — Stream crossing on the west line of Section 3, T11N, R7E of the 6th P.M.

These reports, as required by the County Compliance Addendum to Nebraska's Action Plan, contain certain data needed for a study of a highway project prior to the start of the planning period. Since not all highway improvements are of the same magnitude, nor will they have similar economic, social and environmental effects, a project level will be assigned to each project to indicate the complexity of the project and the detail of the required study procedures. All of the above listed projects have been tentatively classified as "Non-major" and "Level 3." Such classification indicates a minimum degree of study and does not require an Environmental Impact Statement or a Negative Declaration.

Copies of these reports have been sent to agencies and local officials having an interest in the projects. The reports are available for public inspection at the office of the Lancaster County Engineer, County-City Building, Lincoln, Nebraska.

Nebraska Employment Optimism Fades

By DAN FRENCH
Omaha (AP) — "To file a claim for unemployment insurance," reads the sign, "you must first register with the Job Service."

That sterile message greets the thousands of confused and frustrated Nebraskans who seek assistance in the office of the Nebraska Department of Labor here.

And it points out a basic problem. There aren't enough jobs for persons seeking work — in Nebraska or elsewhere.

With the release of the latest unemployment statistics in the state, all those optimistic statements about Nebraska suffering less than the rest of the nation because of a diversified economy have largely ceased.

It seems Nebraska is catching up.

5.8% In January

Those statistics show that statewide in January, 39,900 Nebraskans were receiving unemployment benefits from the state's $57 million pool. Certainly, others were out of work, who, for various reasons, were not receiving benefits. But the available statistics reflect a worsening situation. In January, according to official Department of Labor Statistics, 5.8% of the state's work force was without a job.

That was a dramatic increase over December, when 4.6% of the work force (32,700 persons) was without a job.

In human terms, that means attempting to support one's self and one's family on a maximum of $74 a week. That's $74 per week to buy groceries and clothing, pay the rent or mortgage payment, meet the utility bill and put gas in the car to use in looking for a job. And the $74 figure is the maximum. It ranges downward to a minimum of $12 per week, depending on the income from previous employment.

Long Time Coming

For Nebraskans struggling to maintain the sparse lifestyle that $74 a week allows, the light at the end of the tunnel may be a long time coming into view.

Rod Barnes, manager of the State Department of Labor Job Service office in Omaha, says employers are becoming more selective in filling the smaller number of job openings now available.

Barnes says in more normal times the office maintained a listing of 800-1,000 job openings. Now the list varies between 500 and 600.

As the number of available jobs slips, so too does the number of placements made by the Job Service office here. Barnes says during the last six months of 1974, the office filled 69.2% of the job openings it had. However, he says he doubts that figure will be approached during the first six months of 1975.

Subtle Pressure

As the economy flounders, the Department of Labor is beginning to exert subtle pressure on business firms. Firms that contract with the federal government for $10,000 or more annually are required to list openings with the Job Service office. Barnes says many of the businesses have been called recently — a reminder of the requirement.

For the immediate future, indications are that a worsening situation can be expected.

A Department of Labor spokesman in Lincoln says employment in February is normally very irregular. And, he adds, "Judging from the weather, anything could happen." He wasn't talking about a dramatic upturn.

In Omaha, as in most metropolitan areas, unemployment is higher than in the rest of the state. In January, 17,750 Omahans were without jobs and receiving unemployment compensation. The figure translates to 7.1% of the city's workers.

Lincoln Better Off

As usual, Lincoln fared better than the state, and much better than Omaha. In January, 5.6% of Lincoln's workers were unemployed. And those 5,350 persons probably face a better prospect of securing employment than much of the rest of the state.

The Department of Labor spokesman attributed that to a smaller number of jobs in cyclical manufacturing areas than in Omaha and other cities.

About 5,000 Nebraskans have greater reason than most to hope for an economic upturn. They have exhausted the 26-week period during which they qualified for unemployment benefits. However, because of the triggering mechanism of a 4.5% national unemployment rate for the last 90 days, all benefits have not ended.

Notices have been sent out by the Department of Labor notifying individuals who have exhausted benefits of the extended eligibility.

Beginning last Monday, those among the 5,000 still unemployed were eligible to apply for extended benefits authorized by federal legislation. The benefits run for an additional 13 weeks and provide for payment at a rate of 50% of the full benefits. The payment is financed equally by employer payments and the federal government.

13 More Weeks

Following the 13-week period, under current law, the unemployed worker is eligible to apply for 13 more weeks of benefits, payable at the same 50% of full benefits. Those benefits are financed solely by the federal government.

The Department of Labor says there is no danger of exhausting the state unemployment compensation fund in the immediate future, as has already happened in a few other states.

The fund stood at $57 million at the end of December, and payments of approximately $4 million were made in January. However, payments from employers were also due in January, and the Department says it's likely that the fund exceeded the $57 million figure at the end of last month.

Privately, many Department of Labor officials smile at the lack of criticism about the current size of the fund. In the past, some politicians have criticized the size of the pool, maintaining that such a large reserve indicated an unwise use of capital.

One official attributed the size of the fund to what he called "basic conservatism" of Nebraskans. He says it's another time that conservatism has paid real dividends.

The Department of Labor says the frustration of unemployment will likely continue for a number of Nebraskans, and may get worse. But, it says exhaustion of the unemployment fund will not add to that frustration.

Transit Report Eyes Fares, Benches, Costs

By JIM DECAP
Star Staff Writer

Fares, benches, shelters and projected costs were all part of the fourth interim report on a transit development program by Peter Saklas of Alan M. Vorhees & Associates presented to the Lincoln Lancaster County Goals and Policies Committee Wednesday night.

In the area of fares, Saklas said there was no change recommended with the exception of senior citizens. He said his company recommends that there be no income limitation for senior citizens to ride at reduced fares.

Saklas said a pass system is also recommended even though it adds a burden to the system and some confusion for the riders and drivers.

In the area of marketing, Saklas said his company recommends bus stop signs, benches, shelters, nice buses and an aggressive informational program.

He said that the signs are a good informational and marketing tool to help reach the new and occasional riders. The signs would aid riders and drivers in knowing exactly where the bus stops are and would also aid bus maintenance crews in identifying bus loading areas.

Saklas said benches and shelters at bus stops are recommended on an experimental basis to see "whether they would fly in the local neighborhoods."

A good informational campaign is another important factor, Saklas said.

Many people in a recent survey said they were unable to use the bus system, he said, when in fact they could. They just did not have adequate information.

He said Lincoln will receive $4.5 million in federal funds for the transit system over the next six years and the federal guidelines for those discretionary funds require a "detailed accounting of what you do with their money."

Saklas said his company recommended that the transit system adopt a "subscription service."

Charter A Bus

Under this system a group of people or a rural community could charter a bus to serve them on a regular basis.

Another system Saklas recommended is dial-a-ride.

Under the dial-a-ride system people could call during specific low-traffic hours such as weeknights or certain weekend hours and request a ride.

Saklas told the group that other recommended changes in service are expanded central business district coverage, an expansion of cross-town service, expanded service to the Gateway shopping center and increased route service so a bus will stop every 20 minutes.

Saklas projected that the recommended transit system would cost Lincoln taxpayers from $750,000 to $1,126,000 annually. The present system is operated at an annual cost of $600,000 which includes depreciation, the Handy Van service and the senior citizen service.

Written comments on the transit system recommendations may be presented to the city county planning department by March 7.

Monroe Closing Down For Two Weeks

Cozad (UPI) — The Monroe Auto Equipment Co. here said Wednesday it will close down its production operations for two weeks, beginning March 10. Michael's Surgery Delayed Two Days

The operation, originally was set for Wednesday, but was shifted because an emergency arose with an infant who requires surgery. Michael suffers from a combination of heart problems.

Park Along Missouri Urged

Washington (AP) — Rep. James Abdnor, D-S.D., says he has introduced legislation to designate land along the Missouri River as a national recreational area. Abdnor said his legislation would establish the Great Prairie Lake National Recreation area along the river in the Dakotas and Nebraska.

TREASURE CITY

Air Link Eyed To Twin Cities

By BOB SCHREPF
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln aviation interests will talk with a Wisconsin commuter airline this weekend about the possibility of connecting Lincoln and Minneapolis-St. Paul with up to three non-stop flights daily.

Representatives of Air Wisconsin, a so-called third-level carrier based at Appleton, Wis., with ten years operating experience and annual boardings in excess of 165,000, will meet Saturday morning with the Lincoln Airport Authority, Nebraska Department of Aeronautics personnel and members of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce.

Lincoln interests for several years have tried to line up direct air service to the Twin Cities but efforts to interest Frontier, North Central and Ozark Airlines, all regional carriers, have failed.

As Early As April

Should Air Wisconsin decide to test the Lincoln market, direct flights could begin as early as April 1, according to a chamber transportation spokesman.

Although Air Wisconsin is governed by federal safety regulations, as a commuter airline, it is not required to seek Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) approval of its routes and scheduling CAB route decisions sometimes take years.

Thus service could commence soon after a decision is made by the airline.

Members of the Chamber of Commerce board of directors Wednesday were urged to attend the Saturday breakfast meeting.

The meeting will include demonstration flights in Air Wisconsin's equipment, the Fairchild-Swearingen Metro Propjet, a "mini-Convair," which carries 19 passengers (probably 15 over a long haul) at 300 m.p.h.

Flight time between Lincoln and Minneapolis-St. Paul is estimated at one hour, 20 minutes on the Air Wisconsin plane.

Past surveys suggest that Lincoln can now generate the passenger traffic to keep Air Wisconsin's planes filled on the three daily round trips.

A new study of the projected passenger load between Lincoln and the Twin Cities, undertaken by Ralph H. Burke, Inc., is not yet ready for release, but local interests remain confident that there is enough traffic here to support a Lincoln-Twin Cities route.

Members of the chamber's aviation committee believe that Air Wisconsin has the potential to develop the market and one chamber official told the board Wednesday that the daily direct service on the commuter line "might even work as a catalyst" to attract the interest of the regional carriers.

Chamber directors discussed the possibility of the Lincoln to Minneapolis-St. Paul route being used as a springboard of another type.

Broader Answer?

Should Air Wisconsin be successful in an initial Nebraska operation, it was suggested, perhaps that airline or a commuter line like it could be the answer to solving the air transportation needs of Nebraska's middle-sized cities which may be stripped of existing service and others which are without service.

One major question facing both the local interests and Air Wisconsin, according to a chamber spokesman, is, will Lincoln passengers want to use "this kind of equipment and service at their prices?"

The meeting with Air Wisconsin representatives will start at 9:15 a.m. Saturday on the upper level of Lincoln's new air terminal.

Other business conducted by the chamber at its monthly meeting Wednesday:

The board voted to support LB327, which would establish a Nebraska Housing Development Authority to work with lenders and act as a lender of last resort to provide housing for an additional number of low and moderate income families.

The board voted to oppose LB478, a bill which would allow Nebraska motor carriers to raise rate 45 cents after filing an application with the Public Service Commission, whether a hearing is held and completed or not.

Plane Ready To Map City For Cengas

An airplane collecting data for the Cengas thermal scanning project will begin flying over the city Thursday night, according to Lincoln division manager C.L. Wilcox.

The thermal scanning project, an infra-red system to measure rooftop temperatures, is being conducted by Cengas to determine heat loss through the roofs of residential and commercial buildings in five communities served by the company.

The flyover is expected to take two nights, beginning around midnight and lasting about 3½ hours a night, Wilcox said.

LISTENING

Researchers at the University of Minnesota found that the average person absorbs only about half of what he hears, even though he may be questioned immediately. Listening is a skill that must be developed. In the past it has been difficult for persons with "unilateral" hearing loss (one good ear and one impaired ear) to benefit from the use of a hearing aid. Now a development called CROS (Contralateral Routing of Signals) is helping these people use hearing aids successfully.

If you have this problem, let us tell you more about MAICO CROS hearing — it could be the answer to your problem. Call or write me for an appointment — no charge — located at 415 Sharp Bldg., Lincoln. Phone 432-8597.

Carter Proposes Oil Import Quotas

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Rejecting President Ford's proposed tariff on imported oil and some Democratic suggestions for gasoline rationing, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter Wednesday proposed import quotas as an energy conservation alternative.

Carrying his campaign for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination to Lincoln, Carter conferred with Gov. J. James Exon, addressed the Legislature, spoke to a Democratic luncheon gathering and met with newsmen.

As an announced candidate for his party's presidential nod, Carter automatically will be entered in Nebraska's presidential primary election a year from this spring.

'I'll Be Back'

"I consider Nebraska very important, very friendly and very enjoyable," the Georgia peanut farmer said. "I'll be back."

Carter urged the imposition of quotas to reduce foreign oil imports by at least one million barrels a day.

That would result in a 5% reduction in available oil which, Carter said, could be absorbed by "relatively mild, largely voluntary, restrictions on wasteful consumption."

If a voluntary system did not work, he said, there could be certain "restraints on purchases," such as a ban on Sunday gasoline sales.

Rationing, Carter told the Legislature, could cost $2 billion a year.

Turning from energy problems to the economy, the soft-spoken Georgian told newsmen the nation needs "an immediate end to the partisan squabbling in Washington."

Favors Tax Cut

Carter proposed "an immediate reduction of the income tax on the average American family," enough of a cut to produce an additional $18 billion in consumer purchasing power.

Then, in order to get the economy humming, he said, there should be "an immediate stimulation for one major industry — housing or construction."

Government-guaranteed loans to stimulate construction of family dwellings could be the tool, he said.

Carter also favors an increased investment tax credit for businesses.

The long-term solution is to "find somebody to run the government," he suggested.

Carter predicted that Americans will choose a governor or former governor for their President in 1976, "someone who has not gotten bogged down in the horrible bureaucratic mess in Washington."

Orderly 'House'

America must "get its domestic house in order" if it is to pursue a successful foreign policy, he said.

Withdrawal of some American troops stationed in other nations would be one element in his foreign policy, he said.

"I think we should withdraw from South Vietnam, Thailand, Cambodia, Korea and the Philippines," Carter said, keeping a "substantial force" in Asia primarily stationed in and around Japan.

If Vietnamese President Thieu has the support of his people, he can "adequately defend" the territory he claims to govern, Carter said.

"I do not think we should prop up a government without the support of the people on an eternal basis."

Carter said he believes the defense budget proposal of $105 billion can safely be reduced to $90 billion by cutting waste and inefficiency.

"It is not necessary to have waste to have an adequate defense," he said.

Bishop Could Be In For Showdown

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

Bishop Don Holter of Lincoln could find himself involved in a church showdown over ordination of homosexuals.

Holter, bishop of the United Methodist Church of Nebraska, is chairman of the church's national Division of the Ordained Ministry, which this week issued a statement on the question in hopes of calming debate.

The issue is likely to provoke considerable discussion at the quadrennial General Conference to be held next year in Portland, Ore.

'Incompatible'

Because the Statement of Social Principles adopted by the 1972 General Conference "declares homosexual practice to be incompatible with Christian teachings... the ordination of self-proclaimed homosexuals to the... ministry of the United Methodist Church" is precluded, the statement says.

However, it goes on to state that "there is a continuing need to extend the study, research and reflection of sexual orientation and expression."

According to Bishop Holter, the statement does not represent "an official position of the church."

"It's more a statement of where we are — not whether we approve or disapprove," he said.

'Divisive Controversy'

The issue could provoke an "emotional, divisive controversy," he continued. "My own feeling is that this is not as much of a problem as some people think it is."

Biblically and theologically, there is "no place where homosexual practice is condoned," he said. And there are biblical passages that "would be absolutely opposed to it."

"Many conservatives are picking up" on these passages, he said. More liberal church members feel that the door should be left open for further consideration.

"In the past, you could never talk about anything like this," Bishop Holter said. "I think it's healthy that we can talk about it now."

School Districts May Lose Aid

Tentative figures indicated 107 school districts in Nebraska stand to lose some state aid because they exceeded the state law limiting school expenditures.

Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly supplied the Legislature's Revenue Committee Wednesday with a list of the school districts provided by the State Department of Education.

The law was passed when state aid was increased from $35 to $55 million. It stated that for every dollar a school district exceeded its previous year's budget plus a certain percentage a dollar of state aid would be taken away. School districts could exceed the limits if a vote of the people approved it.

The data indicates that 74 Class I districts, including Lancaster County Districts 51 and 158; eight Class II districts; 24 Class III; and one Class VI district may have exceeded the limits.

The tentative penalties to be assessed against the districts under the 1972-73 spending limitation on 1973-74 expenditures ranged from a few hundred dollars to $70,044 for Cedar County District 101.

Lancaster County District 51 faces a $2,324 penalty, while District 158 may be penalized $283 in state aid.

An memo from the State Education Department said, "Each of these districts is being notified so that we might go over the records with them to be certain that there were no errors in reporting — or that an election or a special meeting was not held to successfully raise their limit."

The memo said the attorney general has been asked to assist in the penalty question.

Warner said the penalties "are indicative of a problem that should not be left hanging when this Legislature adjourns."

Cunningham Urges Losing Of Licenses

Omaha (AP) — A former Nebraska congressman has urged the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) not to renew the broadcast licenses held by Don Burden of Omaha.

Burden is president and board chairman of Star Stations, Inc., which operates radio stations KOIL-AM and KEFM-FM, Omaha; WIFE-FM and WIFE-FM, Indianapolis, Ind., and KISN-AM, Vancouver, Wash.

In a letter to the FCC, former Republican Rep. Glenn Cunningham of Omaha charged that Burden tried to pressure him into intervening in the FCC's investigation of the Burden stations.

"In early 1970, Mr. Burden, already under fire, called me off the floor (of the U.S. House) and demanded that I get the (Interstate and Foreign Commerce) committee to let the (Burden) said, 'get off my back.'"

Help Said Refused
Cunningham said he refused to intervene, and shortly thereafter, Burden contributed $750 to John Y. McCollister.

McCollister defeated Cunningham in the 1970 Republican primary, ending Cunningham's 14-year congressional career, and went on to win the state's second District seat. Since then, McCollister has won re-election twice.

Burden confirmed that he contacted Cunningham in 1970, and that he gave $750 to the McCollister campaign, but after that, the similarity in the stories ends.

"As I recall, I waited in his (Cunningham's) office and he never came to his office," Burden said. When Burden finally talked with Cunningham, Burden said he found the congressman "didn't know anything about the committee, let alone what was involved in my case."

'Irate' Phone Call
Burden said that when Cunningham learned of the donation to McCollister, he became "irate" and called KOIL, demanding to speak to Burden. However, Burden said he was away at the time.

Last month, the FCC said it will not renew the licenses of the five Star Stations, alleging "serious misconduct" in the operations of WIFE and KISN.

The charges center on allegations that the stations were improperly used to publicize the Senate campaigns of Vance Hartke of Indiana and Mark Hatfield, then the governor of Oregon.

Burden disputes the charges, and is planning a court test of the FCC decision.

Burden also said letters supporting the renewal of the licenses have been sent to the FCC by several civic groups, including the Boys' Clubs of Omaha and Omaha United Community Services.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST
By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast for Thursday

CAPRICORN women devastate me with a look a bathing of eyelashes. The woman born under this zodiacal sign buys misadventures that are too big, asks for astrological counsel and then proceeds to tell me what it's all about from astrology to the Republican Party. The woman born under this sign is willing to ask, but not always prepared to listen. Does your Capricorn woman fit this pattern?

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Accent on waiting. Agreeing to operating showing that you can accept reality. Pisces, Virgo persons figure prominently. Accent is on coming into your own. Don't rush. Weigh actions say no to one who tries to force you into allying signature to legal docu-

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Expect pressure. Some people will apparently take delight in attempting to push you to the wall. Defend position in calm, deliberate manner. Avoid panic. Basic loyalties will surface. You could be surprised by practical support.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your ability to animate, create, illustrate comes to forefront. By animate is meant your talent for moving, getting around, laughing and laughing. Aries, Libra persons are fascinated and will play key roles.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Parochial efforts combine. Job health, routine show sensationalism aside. You are directed with one who has fearful reputation. You come out okay and your prestige is on upswing. Leo, Aquarius persons are in picture. You get on solid ground. You will be more secure.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) What you thought was going to be an unpleasant experience turns out to be almost rosy. Short trip and relative could be involved. Aquarius is likely to be in picture. Special call or message is featured. Your ability to ask the right questions could lead to profit. Empty personal possessions and collections. Gemini, Sagittarius persons are in picture. Concentrate on separating quality from secondhand goods. Message becomes increasingly clear.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Lunar cycle is such that personality shines. People are compelled to applaud you. Take advantage — get going. Go places — see and be seen. Highlight creativity, independence and originality. You break through red tape and perceive heart of matters.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Much that happens is supposed. People want to impart information — but there is a barrier know it and read between the lines. Bypass the obvious, detect the subtle nuances. Emphasis is on what occurs behind the scenes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) A friend makes some constructive suggestions regarding home decoration, domestic adjustment, revision of lifestyle. You discover that at least one person does have your welfare at heart. That's good — appreciate it!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Spotlight is on what you want to achieve. Basic goals and contacts which aid in attaining desires. Separate fact from fancy — enjoy flattery but always consider sources. You may soon be asked to assume added responsibility.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You're going to be busy with correspondence, general communications, advertising and questions pertaining to publication dates. One who advocates stimulating philosophy could become your main ally.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Finish project. Get going in areas previously cloven. You now have more appeal. You are more convincing. People are drawn to you and cheer your efforts. Male or another close to you is willing to intelligently discuss finances.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY domestic adjustment now is of paramount importance. Emotional truce will hold. February and November should be outstanding months for you in 1975. Aries, Libra persons play key roles in your life. You have sense of drama, are attracted to law and have way of aiding the underdog.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 4, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
